3rd Letter Bomb

Defused In Rome

ROME (AP) — Postal authorities have discovered the third letter bomb in six days addressed to a movie actress, the latest one sent to Elsa Martinelli.

Officials reported Tuesday that the bomb addressed to Miss Martinelli caught fire at the Pisa railway station as the bag containing it was being loaded into a mail coach. It was defused at the Rome railway station post office.

Irish Fighting Explodes

BELFAST (AP) — Terrorists threw a hand grenade into a busload of Roman Catholic workers in a Belfast suburb today, killing one and injuring nine, as Northern Ireland's Catholic and Protestant guerrillas squared off for all-out war against each other.

Security chiefs believed the bus ambush was the work of Protestant extremists. They anticipated retaliation by the Catholics of the Irish Republican Army.

The bus was passing through a quiet Protestant suburb of Belfast, taking the workmen to the site of a new Catholic school. A man with a stick limped in front of the vehicle, and the driver slowed almost to a halt. Two men ran up, lobbed a fragmentation grenade through an open window and escaped.

Two of the wounded were reported in critical condition, and the injuries of three others were "extremely serious," police said.

The bombing raised to 697 the confirmed death toll in 3½ years of religious warfare in Northern Ireland.

The militant Protestants of the Ulster Defense Association announced Tuesday that because of Irish Republican Army "provocations," they could no longer hold Protestant extremists in check and would not try.

The Catholics of the Irish Republican Army replied that they would take "ruthless retaliatory action" for the killing of Catholics. The UDA said this was "a virtual declaration of war."

Stennis Improves

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John C. Stennis, shot twice in a holdup, remained in very serious condition today, but a hospital spokesman said the 71-year-old chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee showed slight improvement after spending a comfortable night.

The spokesman said at a 6 a.m. EST briefing that the prospects for Stennis' recovery were still "guarded." But he said the senator was awake and his vital signs were good. The next briefing was scheduled for 3 p.m.

Stennis' administrative assistant, William Cresswell, said Stennis was "very alert" when visited Wednesday night by his wife, Coy, and son, John Hampton Stennis. He said John visited briefly again today about 5:30 a.m.

Police and FBI agents, meanwhile, checked police files and visited several high schools in an effort to learn the identity of two teen-agers who are believed responsible for shooting Stennis outside his northwest Washington home Tuesday night.

Stennis underwent 6½ hours of surgery for the wounds—one in the thigh and one which entered the chest and passed through the stomach and the pancreas. He has been fed intravenously and received multiple blood transfusions.

The senator's attackers reportedly took his wallet containing credit cards, a gold pocket watch, his Phi Beta Kappa key and a 25-cent piece.

Police and FBI spokesmen refused to comment on their investigation.

The Washington Post, however, said authorities have focused their efforts on known gun-carrying offenders and youths arrested in the past in the Northwest Washington neighborhood where Stennis has lived for more than 20 years.

National leaders, including President Nixon, have expressed their shock and concern for Stennis, a 25-year Senate veteran and a key backer of a strong U.S. military.

Many senators denounced the attack on Stennis as an example of the crime problem in the nation's cities.

Gunmen have killed five persons in Belfast since Monday. Four were Catholics, and three of those were teen-agers. The fifth was a UDA member.

The Irish Republican Army accused the Ulster Defense Association of giving a green light to sectarian killings "on the scale hitherto unknown." It declared: "A new phase of sectarian killings will not be tolerated. The IRA will utilize all its resources to end sectarian killings for all time."

The UDA said the IRA men were murderers and hypocrites, and "we will not permit them to thrive."

"IRA War on the UDA," said a banner across the front page of the Irish Press in Dublin.

British army sources feared the troops would be caught in the middle.

The assassins continued working Wednesday night.

U.S. Helicopters Fly Red General To Meet

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. helicopters flew to a jungle rendezvous today, picked up the Viet Cong general who directed the 1968 Tet offensive against Saigon and flew him back to join a peacekeeping commission.

Five years almost to the day since the start of the 1968 attack on Saigon, the U.S. helicopter crews brought Lt. Gen. Tran Van Tra and 28 other Viet Cong men to Tan Son Nhut Air Base.

Tra is the 55-year-old deputy military commander of the elusive COSVN, the Communists' Central Office for South Vietnam. As chief Viet Cong member of the four-party joint military commission, he likely holds the key to the release of American prisoners of war held in South Vietnam.

Seven U.S. helicopters marked with white stripes picked up Tra and his men at Loc Ninh, a rubber plantation town 75 miles north of Saigon which Tra's forces captured last year.

They were taken to Camp Davis, a former U.S. Signal Corps installation at Tan Son Nhut, where the other Communist cease-fire delegates are housed.

Because of Tra's absence, the peacekeeping group made up of the four belligerents has been unable to start arranging the exchange of prisoners or the security safeguards that must be set up before the formation International Commission of Control and Supervision can send out its teams of observers to police the cease-fire.

Tentative plans were made for the senior members of the joint military commission to hold their first meeting Friday.

Annexes to the peace agreement signed in Paris last Saturday say prisoners shall be returned and received at places agreed to by the four signatories—the United States, North Vietnam, South Vietnam and the Viet Cong. These four also must guarantee the safety of personnel engaged in the return and reception of the POWs.

Meanwhile, the total of ceasefire violations reported continued to fall off despite continued heavy fighting in the northern provinces and despite the inability of the truce observer teams to get into the field.

The Saigon command claimed there were 188 Communist attacks during the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today, compared with 209 in the previous 24 hours, 311 in the 24 hours before that

A cry of "Hey, you!" halted a 17-year-old Catholic boy walking home in Belfast. When he turned, a gunman shot him in the stomach. His condition today was critical.

A police officer was shot in the back as he parked his car at his home in Downpatrick, County Down. Stray bullets went through a window of the house and hit his 9-year-old daughter. Both were in serious condition.

Gabriel Savage, 17, was kissing his 16-year-old girl friend goodnight when his killer arrived.

The men dragged him from her arms and bundled him into a car as she screamed in terror. They drove away, shot him through the head and left his corpse in a ditch.

Savage was the third Roman Catholic teen-ager slain in Northern Ireland this week, presumably by Protestant terrorists. Two others were badly wounded.

Peter Watterson, 15, was the first to die. He was standing with another 15-year-old Monday in the doorway of his widowed mother's store in the Falls Road district. A spray of bullets from a speeding car cut the two boys down. Watterson died on the spot. His friend survived, badly wounded.

Philip Rafferty, 14, left his home in the Andersonstown district Tuesday night for band practice. His mother said she encouraged the boy to join the band because he had asthma and blowing the trumpet might help expand his lungs. His body was found several hours later at the Giant's Ring, a circle of prehistoric stones outside Belfast. Police said he had been made to lie on the ground, the hood from his coat was pulled over his head, and two bullets were fired into his brain.

"I hope the men who hooded my boy, my pale and sickly boy, and then murdered him will live with the sight of his thin little face forever," said Rafferty's mother.

and 426 in the first 22 hours after the ceasefire went into effect Sunday.

The U.S. Command announced that another American adviser was slightly wounded Wednesday in coastal Binh Dinh province. He was hit by a terrorist explosive, the Command said. He was the sixth American wounded since the cease-fire went into effect.

Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam of South Vietnam returned from Paris and Washington and said he believed the fighting will stop once the international truce teams are in place.

He said if there is a large North Vietnamese invasion, "the countries in the agreement are committed to act but it is up to them to decide what to do."

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew flew to Phnom Penh and then to Bangkok after two days of talks with President Nguyen Van Thieu and other South Vietnamese officials on postwar U.S.-Vietnamese relations and aid to the Saigon government.

In a departure statement, Agnew said his discussions had been "candid and comprehensive" and that he had "assured President Thieu and his advisers of the strong and abiding interest of the United States in the security and wellbeing of South Vietnam."

President Admits American Held By China CIA Agent

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has publicly admitted that an American captured in China 20 years ago was a CIA agent, but administration officials say it was not an effort to trade for the man's early release.

Other government sources had acknowledged the espionage role of John Thomas Downey and Richard Fecteau when their plane was shot down, but Nixon was the first U.S. official to put it on the record during his Wednesday news conference.

The old official line had been that Downey and Fecteau were civilian employees of the Army whose plane was downed when it strayed off course on a flight from Korea to Japan.

In the period leading to Nixon's China trip last year Fecteau was released after serving 19 years of a 20-year sentence. Downey's original sentence was 30 years, but in December 1971 the remaining term was cut to five years.

The matter came up when a reporter asked Nixon about Americans held by the Chinese. He answered that "we have every reason to believe" that two military pilots shot down during the 1960s will be released "as the POW situation is worked out in Vietnam."

The pilots, Navy Lt. Cmdr. Robert Flynn and Air Force Maj. Philip Smith, were shot down in separate missions involving Vietnam reconnaissance missions.

"Downey," Nixon said, "is a different case, as you know. Downey involves a CIA agent."

White House and State Department sources say Nixon was only stating fact, not attempting to trade the admission for Downey's release.

In fact, the President told reporters, "we have no assurance that any change of action, other than the commutation of the sentence, will take place."

However, he emphasized such an act by Peking "would be a very salutary action," indicating Downey's early release would be helpful in improving U.S.-Chinese relations.

Nixon cautioned that the Downey case is best handled in a quiet, diplomatic way. "It is not," he said, "one where any public pressures or bellicose statements from here will be helpful in getting his release."

Heavy Rain Hits Plains, Moves East

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A heavy thunderstorm system rumbled across the Southern Plains today bringing high winds and up to 2 inches of rain to areas between Louisiana and Kansas.

Winds up to 67 miles per hour were clocked Wednesday night at Pine Bluff, Ark., where a house trailer was overturned. No injuries were reported.

Snow whitened areas in a narrow band from the Texas Panhandle through central Kansas, and a heavy-snow warning was in effect for parts of Kansas and Minnesota.

Government Acts To Free Land For More Crops

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a move to increase consumer food supplies and meet rising export commitments, the Nixon administration has opened the way for farmers to produce record corn and soybean crops this year.

The Agriculture Department Wednesday added more land to potential crop production this year by lowering the acreage that farmers must take out of production in order to qualify for government payments.

One result could be a record six-billion-bushel corn crop and soybean production of 1.5 billion bushels.

Prices of wheat, soybean and feed grain have climbed since last summer as a result of heavy exports and growing demands by domestic producers of livestock, poultry and dairy products.

"Our aim is to see that prices get no stronger than they are," said Kenneth E. Frick, administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Under the new strategy, producers of corn, sorghum, and barley will have to idle 25 per cent of their acreage base in 1973 to qualify for full government benefits. When announced last Dec. 11, this set-aside requirement would have been 30 per cent.

In all, according to the department, feed-grain producers are expected to wind up with about 16.5 million acres taken from production this year, compared with 37 million diverted in 1972. Until revised Wednesday, the 1973 plan called for more than 25 million acres to be set aside. The new version, therefore, is aimed at putting about nine million acres back to work.

Weather

Cloudy and warm today, tonight and tomorrow with showers or thundershowers likely. High today near 55,

Ohio Assembly Eyes Vote Reforms

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The 1973 legislature, seemingly bent on election reforms, has before it a proposal that would require automatic recounts of races that sometimes drag on for weeks and months at the expense of the candidates.

Rep. John Sweeney, D-14 Cleveland Heights, introduced a bill Wednesday that would require another count if the winning margin was one-half of one per cent or less of the vote total or less than 1,000 votes, whichever is less.

It would apply to nominations, candidate contests, issues, or questions that might be placed on any local or state ballot. Sweeney's bill was among five proposing election changes which were received at a Wednesday skeleton session of the House.

The House Rules Committee scheduled floor votes Tuesday on five proposed constitutional amendments which backers hope to place before voters in the May primary. They include the Vietnam veterans' bonus, and a proposal to provide property tax relief for farmers.

Other amendments slated for a vote in the House would permit tandem election of the governor and lieutenant governor, authorize state legislators to receive expenses now prohibited, and revise administrative and procedural rules of the General Assembly.

The farm property tax amendment loomed as the only one virtually sure of passage after bipartisan agreement on an amendment that would leave implementation largely up to the legislature. It has more than 50 sponsors of both parties, and it came out of the House Ways and Means Committee by a vote of 18-0.

Republicans are seeking to finance the $300 million veterans' bonus from the general revenue fund, rather than from an increase in property taxes, so that a floor fight may be expected on that issue. Democratic sponsors claim a .6-mill property levy to retire the bonds over a 15-year period is the best way.

Besides Sweeney's recount bill, the other election bills now before the House would:

—Make general election day a holiday.

—Permit absentee voting at boards of elections up to 4 p.m. the day before election.

—Extend voting hours from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

—Eliminate a requirement for a notary to witness the signing of petitions for candidates for state and county party central committee posts.

Numerous other voting law changes have been proposed in the Senate and House by members of both parties with hearings expected to get under way soon. Bedsheet ballots and primary election foul ups have been among voting problems Ohio has experienced in recent years.

No floor sessions of the House or Senate were held this week to allow members to attend a state government seminar in Columbus. A full week of deliberations may be expected next week, leaders said.

At the sparsely-attended seminar, which wound up a three-day program Wednesday, William Weisenberg of the Department of Rehabilitation and Corrections said a "home furlough" bill would be introduced in the legislature within the next few weeks. He said the measure would be aimed at aiding in rehabilitation of inmates.

Weisenberg described the plan as allowing prisoners in minimum security facilities to have weekend releases to visit their families. It would also permit some to have time off from jail to secure jobs.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market indulged in a brief rally today but its upward momentum lost some of its steam. Trading was active.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was ahead .23 to 999.25. Gaining issues had a margin of about 7 to 5 over declining stocks on the New York Stock Exchange. The Dow had been ahead 6.10 points after the first hour of trading.

"The market was making up lost ground, in a technical rally correcting an oversold condition that developed over the past two weeks," said Larry Wachtel, research director at Bache & Co.

On the Big Board the most active issue was Babcock & Wilcox, up 1/8 to 34 3/8. Most of the action came on a block trade of 500,000 shares at 24 1/4. On the American Stock exchange the price-change index was up .01 to 25.82. At noon the New York Stock Exchange index was up .05 to 62.80.

Order Repayment By Mrs. Haag Of Embezzled Funds

Wednesday the Common Pleas Court issued judgments in several criminal matters, including Sarabelle Haag, convicted of embezzlement from the Orient Belt Co.

Mrs. Haag was found guilty of embezzling more than $34,000 from the company for which she worked as a bookkeeper. Following an investigation by the adult parole officer, the court determined to release Mrs. Haag on probation for three years during which time she must make full restitution of the money taken.

Also appearing were Damon Wise and Ralph Donald Williams, charged in separate incidents of grand larceny.

Wise was found guilty of the theft of copper wire from a railroad and placed on probation for three years. On a charge of stealing a trailer from South Bloomfield, Williams was sent to Mansfield Reformatory for one to seven years.

Sheriff Charges Grove City Women In House Burglary

Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff and Deputy Don Thompson arrested two 18-year-old Grove City women in connection with the theft of $199 in merchandise, including blank checks, taken Jan. 24 in a burglary of the Frederick Dountz house, Columbus-Darbyville Rd.

The two women, Susan Moore and Holly Vaughan, are expected to be charged with breaking and entering an inhabited dwelling in the day season and grand larceny Thursday afternoon in Municipal Court.

"It was actually an ingenious scheme designed by the women to get money with the checks" and a sharp-eyed witness who recalled the license number of a car in the Dountz driveway about the time of the burglary that lead to their arrest, according to Sheriff Radcliff.

"The object of the attack on the house was the blank checks," Sheriff Radcliff said, who noted that most of the stolen items were recovered.

The women apparently posed as fashion models in at least two Columbus area shopping plazas.

They bought a stereo system at one store with the checks, three long dresses in another and $60 worth of groceries in a Grove City supermarket.

They returned the dresses to another retail store in a cross-town shopping center and pocketed $150, but apparently could not return the stereo, which was recovered.

Sheriff Radcliff said Mrs. Moore was a distant cousin of Mrs. Dountz. He also said Mrs. Vaughn's infant baby

Uniformity Of Social Services Goal Of Welfare Department

Charles W. Bates, Director of the Ohio Department of Public Welfare, told the Citizens Committee for Ohio Children's Services (CCOCS) January 31 that counties must work together to establish uniformity of social services to families and children.

Among the 150 members present at the Columbus meeting were Mrs. Virginia Adkins, Miss Betsy Hamrick, Miss Patricia Dawley and Oscar H. Burchfield, all social workers of the Children Services Board of Pickaway County.

Bates feels that Ohio has had a "grab bag" of services in the past, with little coordination and cooperation among children's services agencies.

To achieve a uniformity of services the "state must have a sense of commitment to programs for children," he said, adding that he will assist in encouraging counties to establish comprehensive systems of services.

According to Bates, the priorities in obtaining consistent services are establishing in each county a place that people can quickly identify and make contact with to get help when needed, a 24-hour emergency social service center, a place responsive to child abuse and a basic backup system of day care workers, homemakers and services for the elderly.

These goals parallel the philosophy of CCOCS which was formed three years ago to encourage Ohio to seek a state-wide program of minimum services in every county.

Mrs. Henry Colson of Columbus is chairman of the interest group composed of children's services agency representatives and concerned citizens from most of Ohio's 88 counties.

The committee also discussed Ohio adoption procedures and the citizen's role in the passage of laws.

Order Cox To Leave The State

Two consecutive six-month jail terms were imposed on Adam Cox Jr. Thursday for assault and battery.

His conviction Tuesday was the decision of a jury who ruled against a robbery connection to the reported attack on Dewey Blevins and Omer Sowers last October.

Seven months of the total 12-month sentence was suspended by Judge William Ammer and credit was given Cox for the time already spent in jail. Cox will be required to serve 30 days more in the county jail and raise at least $250 to pay for costs of his trial before he will be released. He was made responsible for the cost of his trial, the jury and his counsel, a total estimated about $700 or $800 in all.

Upon his release, Judge Ammer ordered Cox to leave the State of Ohio and imposed an 18-month probation term, requiring Cox to keep the Pickaway County Court notified of his residence out of state.

Conversation Outside Jail Brings Penalty

An 18-year-old Pickaway County girl was ordered jailed until Sunday for violating the no-talking rule of the Pickaway County jail.

The girl, Mary O'Dell was brought before Judge Ammer on a charge of contempt of court after she was caught talking to one of the prisoners on the third floor of the jail.

Miss O'Dell was reported making regular evening visits to the rear of the county jail, by way of the alley. She would park her car and carry on a conversation with a 17-year-old youth confined to the jail awaiting hearing on a juvenile court matter. She was observed one night by Sheriff Radcliff, then caught early this week repeating the visit.

Judge Ammer found the girl guilty, noting that there were numerous signs on the sides of the jail advising persons not to talk to prisoners. He did not impose the maximum 10 day sentence, but ordered Miss O'Dell confined at the county jail until midnight Sunday.

1040 U.S. Individual Income Tax Return

Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q. Is it true that this year's Federal income tax return asks questions related to Federal revenue sharing?

A. Yes. Your 1972 Form 1040 and short Form 1040A ask two questions related to the sharing of Federal money with state and local governments. One question asks the location of your principal place of residence (state, county, locality & township); the second question asks for the number of your dependents who are filing a return of their own or who did not live at your principal place of residence at the end of 1972.

You must supply the correct information in your answers to these questions to ensure that your state county and local community receive their rightful share of revenue sharing funds.

Q. Does every taxpayer have to give his state, county locality and township in answering the revenue sharing question on place of residence?

A. All of this information may not be required. Only certain states have townships and these are specified in your tax form instructions. If your state is not listed there, you can leave this column of your tax return blank. Secondly, there are a few places, such as Baltimore City, Md. and St. Louis, Mo., that are not within a county. Once again, these areas are listed in your instructions.

Unless you lived outside the U.S. on Dec. 31, 1972, you must enter the abbreviation for your state in the column provided. In addition, if you lived inside an incorporated city, town, or village, print the name of the municipality in the "locality" column. If you did not live inside the boundaries of such a location, check the box in this column.

Q. Can you give me some tips on how to guard against dishonest tax preparers?

A. The IRS offers the following advice to taxpayers seeking assistance from commercial income tax return preparers: never sign a blank return; do not sign a tax return prepared in pencil because it can be changed later; do not allow your refund check to be mailed to the preparer; avoid the advisor who "guarantees" refunds, wants a percentage of the refund, or supposedly knows all the angles; and avoid the preparer who advises a taxpayer to overstate deductions, claim fictitious dependents or omit income.

In addition, taxpayers should insist that the tax preparer sign the return he prepares and enter his tax identifying number. Finally, be sure to keep a copy of your return.

Q. What are the rules for deducting finance charges on department store revolving charge accounts?

A. You may deduct the "finance charge" levied by retail stores on your revolving charge accounts if the charges are based on your unpaid balances and computed monthly. Also, in the case of bank credit card plans, you can deduct the finance charge if no part of this amount is for service charges, loan fees, credit investigation fees, etc.

However, if you buy items on the installment plan and the carrying charges are separately stated, but the interest charge cannot be ascertained, deduct the lower of (1) 6 percent of your average unpaid monthly balance or (2) the actual charge for the year. For more details, see IRS Publication 545, "Income Tax Deduction for Interest Expense." Use the order blank on the back of your tax forms package to obtain a free copy.

Q. I had no income tax liability for 1972, but I'm filing a return to recover income tax withheld from my pay. Can I still designate $1 of the tax withheld towards the Presidential Election Campaign Fund?

A. No. You can only make the $1 check-off if you had an income tax liability. This does not mean that because you are getting a refund, you can't use the $1 check-off, but it does mean that you must be able to show tax on line 20 of your Form 1040 or line 21 of your short Form 1040A to use the check-off.

Tap Woman To Become AEC Head

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dixy Lee Ray, who says the Atomic Energy Commission has a "bad guy" reputation it doesn't deserve, is reportedly President Nixon's choice to take over as chairman of the agency.

Dr. Ray, a 58-year-old marine biologist from Tacoma, Wash., who was named to the five-member commission by Nixon last summer, will replace James R. Schlesinger as chairman, congressional sources revealed Tuesday.

Schlesinger has been named director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Dr. Ray formerly was director of Seattle's Pacific Science Center and an associate professor of zoology at the University of Washington.

She was the first woman named to a full five-year term on the AEC. As its chairman she would be one of the highest-ranking women in the federal government.

AEC spokesman John Harris said he couldn't confirm the appointment. "Any announcement would have to come from the White House," he said.

1040 U.S. Individual Income Tax Return

Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q. Is it true that this year's Federal income tax return asks questions related to Federal revenue sharing?

A. Yes. Your 1972 Form 1040 and short Form 1040A ask two questions related to the sharing of Federal money with state and local governments. One question asks the location of your principal place of residence (state, county, locality & township); the second question asks for the number of your dependents who are filing a return of their own or who did not live at your principal place of residence at the end of 1972.

You must supply the correct information in your answers to these questions to ensure that your state county and local community receive their rightful share of revenue sharing funds.

Q. Does every taxpayer have to give his state, county locality and township in answering the revenue sharing question on place of residence?

A. All of this information may not be required. Only certain states have townships and these are specified in your tax form instructions. If your state is not listed there, you can leave this column of your tax return blank. Secondly, there are a few places, such as Baltimore City, Md. and St. Louis, Mo., that are not within a county. Once again, these areas are listed in your instructions.

Unless you lived outside the U.S. on Dec. 31, 1972, you must enter the abbreviation for your state in the column provided. In addition, if you lived inside an incorporated city, town, or village, print the name of the

Q. Can you give me some tips on how to guard against dishonest tax preparers?

A. The IRS offers the following advice to taxpayers seeking assistance from commercial income tax return preparers: never sign a blank return; do not sign a tax return prepared in pencil because it can be changed later; do not allow your refund check to be mailed to the preparer; avoid the advisor who "guarantees" refunds, wants a percentage of the refund, or supposedly knows all the angles; and avoid the preparer who advises a taxpayer to overstate deductions, claim fictitious dependents or omit income.

In addition, taxpayers should insist that the tax preparer sign the return he prepares and enter his tax identifying number. Finally, be sure to keep a copy of your return.

Q. What are the rules for deducting finance charges on department store revolving charge accounts?

A. You may deduct the "finance charge" levied by retail stores on your revolving charge accounts if the charges are based on your unpaid balances and computed monthly. Also, in the case of bank credit card plans, you can deduct the finance charge if no part of this amount is for service charges, loan fees, credit investigation fees, etc.

However, if you buy items on the installment plan and the carrying charges are separately stated, but the interest charge cannot be ascertained, deduct the lower of (1) 6 percent of your average unpaid monthly balance or (2) the actual charge for the year. For more details, see IRS Publication 545, "Income Tax Deduction for Interest Expense." Use the order blank on the back of your tax forms package to obtain a free copy.

Q. I had no income tax liability for 1972, but I'm filing a return to recover income tax withheld from my pay. Can I still designate $1 of the tax withheld towards the Presidential Election Campaign Fund?

A. No. You can only make the $1 check-off if you had an income tax liability. This does not mean that because you are getting a refund, you can't use the $1 check-off, but it does mean that you must be able to show tax on line 20 of your Form 1040 or line 21 of your short Form 1040A to use the check-off.

Tap Woman To Become AEC Head

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dixy Lee Ray, who says the Atomic Energy Commission has a "bad guy" reputation it doesn't deserve, is reportedly President Nixon's choice to take over as chairman of the agency.

Dr. Ray, a 58-year-old marine biologist from Tacoma, Wash., who was named to the five-member commission by Nixon last summer, will replace James R. Schlesinger as chairman, congressional sources revealed Tuesday.

Schlesinger has been named director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Dr. Ray formerly was director of Seattle's Pacific Science Center and an associate professor of zoology at the University of Washington.

She was the first woman named to a full five-year term on the AEC. As its chairman she would be one of the highest-ranking women in the federal government.

AEC spokesman John Harris said he couldn't confirm the appointment. "Any announcement would have to come from the White House," he said.

It was less than a year ago when Henry Ford predicted the cost of all the antipollution devices which had been proposed to that time would be $600 per car by 1975. The militant ecologists had a field day with that prediction. Not only was it ridiculous, they said, but an example of how industry cannot be expected to cooperate in the cleanup effort. The head of the Ford Motor Co. was too conservative in his estimate. Various experts, including the Environmental Protection Agency, now peg the added cost at $860 by 1976. That does not include stricter standards now under discussion. If the stricter standards are adopted, the cost could rise to $1,150 per vehicle. What is happening is that it costs x number of dollars to reach a certain point on the antipollution scale, but the cost escalates progressively beyond that point. Nor is cost the whole story. Gas consumption on the 1976 models is expected to rise by 30 per cent because of the inefficiency introduced by the tighter emission controls. That will also create an expanding demand for petroleum products. As people in most parts of the nation are aware, the demands placed upon petroleum and other power sources already are coming up short. That is a factor which ought to receive more attention than it has been given so far.

The New Puritanism

By JEFFREY HART

I gather that in the minds of some people college students are totally given over to a life of pleasure. They are living it up on the campuses, sleeping with each other, enjoying booze, drugs, and what have you. Forget it. The reality is, if anything, grimmer. On the campus today, as I perceive it at Dartmouth and around the Ivy League, fun is very definitely under a cloud. It is a sort of secret, personal vice. I find the students moral, or rather, moralistic, to a fault; and unable, because of the terrible weight of this moralism, to appreciate and enjoy the world as it is. Example: This one, in particular, sticks in my mind. One of my students, a good one in the A and B range, loved skiing and was a fine skier. His father owned a ski area in the Rockies, and wanted the boy to take it over one day. The student really wanted to do this. He thought there were genuine improvements to be made. He could make it one of the nicest places to ski in the country. But would this, he wondered, be "worthwhile"? What the new moralism had told him was that the only "worthwhile" thing was going to the Congo in the Peace Corps, or living in some slum in the United States. I have no doubt that there is useful work to be done in the Congo and in the slums, but why should that perception obliterate the value of running a good ski resort? This would, indeed, provide treasured recreation for thousands of people, businessmen, lawyers, doctors, housewives—worthy enough people whose lives are indeed valuable, even exemplary, and who like to get out for some vacation skiing. I told him to run the best ski area in the country. I don't know what he did. If he has been eaten by a crocodile he certainly deserved it. Example: The long-time custom of choosing someone's date as Queen of the Winter Carnival at Dartmouth has been abandoned this year. Now this is certainly all right. Customs come and go. But some of the justifying rhetoric was breathtaking. No girl should be given an award, said some little Puritan in the college paper, for "mere beauty." Ponder that combination of words for a moment: "mere" beauty. As if "beauty" were some negligible thing, totally subordinated in value to other qualities, such as individual achievement, high scores on tests, athletic accomplishment, and so on. All those things are goods to be valued, of course; but "mere" beauty! What would Raphael or Tintoretto say?

Example: The more officially moral forces at Dartmouth, as at Stanford and other places, are struggling to get rid of the traditional Indian symbol associated with the college, especially in connection with the athletic teams. The officially moral forces are in some intellectual disarray in providing a justification for this stand. The Indian head symbol conventionally used is dignified, even impressive. No one, in anyone's experience, has perceived it as in any way denigrative. Over the years, most people have treasured it in a minor way. Yet we are now in a phase where the imperialism of minority groups is apparently almost irresistible. And therefore the pressure to eliminate the symbol probably cannot be successfully fought, though a good laugh would have been all it would have taken in the first place. Somehow, the depressingly moralistic visage of Jane Fonda seems to preside over it all. That joyless, humorless Maoist face; those semi-sunken cheeks and reproving lips. Those baleful, Puritan eyes. That flat head. Of course, the answer is laughter—bending back the fingers on the tight moralistic grip of all our Malvolios. In his "Divine Comedy," Dante says that those who will be saved who "use the world well." It is a rich phrase. The world is to be loved, but it is always passing. "Mere" beauty, indeed.

According To Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail: Penicillin can kill as well as cure. Allergic responses to the drug-penicillin poisoning take about 200 lives annually in the United States. Wood is one of the strongest as well as the most durable of substances. A block of it only one inch square and 2 1/4 inches long can support a weight of 10,000 pounds. Made up of millions of air cells held together by lignin, a powerful natural glue, wooden timbers more than 2,700 years old have been found in good condition in ancient Turkish tombs. We think we know how to live life well, but we don't seem to make it last as long as some other people do. Only about three out of 100,000 Americans live to be 100. But in the Soviet republic of Azerbaijan, according to the National Geographic Society, 63 out of every 100,000 last a century. What is their secret? What do you do if you get sprayed by a skunk? Scrub your body with carbolic soap and water, shampoo your hair with tomato juice, and soak your clothes in tomato juice or wash them in ammonia solution or chloride of lime. If your eyes are affected, wash them with a mild boric acid solution. But to avoid the problem altogether, don't try to pet any woodland creature that looks like a black and white kitty. No lack of saints: There is a patron saint for practically all types of people including ice skaters. The saint to whom skaters turn for protection and I suppose skiers as well is Ludwina of Holland, whose feast day is April 24. Born in 1380, she suffered a skating accident as a girl which left her crippled. It was Indiana humorist Kin Hubbard who observed, "A sympathizer is a guy who is for you as long as it don't cost anything."

State Legislators Advised Of Ohio Financial Status

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Members of the Ohio General Assembly attending a seminar turned their attention today to the problems of prisons, environmental protection and manpower training. Tuesday lawmakers were advised of the state's financial status and heard pleas for more aid to private colleges. Acting state Finance Director Robert Baker told the seminar, attended by only 60 of the legislature's 132 members, the new state income tax has provided "a stable tax base—one that will provide sufficient revenue so the state can meet service needs." There will be no need for any increases in the tax rates, Baker said, because income will change with the economy.

FEBRUARY 1968 5 YEARS AGO One week after assuming his duties as Circleville Safety Director, Dr. H. H. Shuttleworth resigned. Mayor Richard L. Gerhardt announced the selection of Robert E. Adkins to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation. Vandals set fire to the 10-foot high stump of the famous Logan Elm, all that remained of the famous tree under which Mingo Chief Logan had delivered his plea for peace. Area firefighters were forced to let the stump burn when they were unable to get their trucks through the mud.

Roundtown Players were hard at work in rehearsal for the upcoming production of "Witness for the Prosecution." Logan Elm edged Teays Valley, 63-60, in a thrilling double overtime contest before a capacity crowd at the Vikings' gym. Royce Woolever paced the Braves with 26 points and 13 rebounds while Mike Lombardo led the Vikings with 16 tallies and 12 rebounds.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I have been told I must have a sigmoidoscopy. I received very little further explanation and wonder if this procedure is a surgical one. Mrs. J.K., Ill.

Dear Mrs. K.: A sigmoidoscopy is not a surgical procedure. An instrument, the sigmoidoscope, is gently and painlessly inserted into the rectum. With a magnifying lens, the lower end of the large intestine can be minutely examined. Small erosions, ulcerations, polyps, and inflammations can be studied by direct vision. When necessary, small pieces of tissues can be removed for microscopic study. The slight discomfort of this office procedure is compensated by the valuable information attainable. These findings, in addition to the barium X-ray study of the large bowel, give your physician the information he needs for an accurate diagnosis. I cannot help commenting on your statement that you received "very little further information" about this procedure. Sometimes patients, in their anxiety, do not remember the information given to them by a doctor. Unless one understands exactly what the doctor suggests, confusion must result. The patient, too, plays an important role in "receiving" an explanation. Patients must repeatedly request from their doctors full explanation of the treatment they are about to receive. Without this, the relationship between the doctor and patient is in jeopardy and anxiety inevitably results. Can you tell me something about distilled water? Would it help arthritis and improve circulation? Mr. W.C., La.

Dear Mrs. C.: The process of distillation occurs when water is heated to the boiling point and then the steam is allowed to condense. The process is used for the purification of water. Excess minerals and other substances are thus removed. It is interesting that when distilled water is exposed to the air, it tends to again pick up some of the impurities in the air. There is no relationship between the use of distilled water and arthritic or circulatory disturbances. It really is astonishing how such misinformation arises and then is generously spread from one friend to another. That, which is a source of disturbance to doctors is that people who readily accept such misinformation are less likely to seek professional advice for their medical problems. Ski-mobiles are exciting and invigorating. Unfortunately, many young people without licenses and often without responsibility to themselves and to others are allowed to use these machines. The penalties for the serious accidents that result can last a lifetime.

Business World

By JOHN CUNNEIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — There is no limit to the number of variety of theories to explain the stock market, because there is not limit to the imagination and ambition of stock market people. In recent days the market has been falling rather regularly, and so the explainers have been at work. They attribute the decline to the threat of more inflation, rising interest rates, a weak dollar, institutional idleness, etc. No need to list all the reasons. Most of the time the analyses are impressively complex. But there are exceptions, and the remarkably simple January signal is one. If you check through the first month of the year often sets the course for the months to follow. This has been the case in most of the past 20 years. The significance at the moment is the timing. The month is coming to a close and the averages will show limited changes from their openings. For those who believe that January leads the way, it suggests a mediocre year on average. Should credence be placed in such omen? Or are they mere chance happenings relationships and correlations and designs such as can be found in any set of figures or object if you study them long enough? An observer is entitled to doubt their forecasting value. Any study of the market is essentially a study in mass psychology as well as economics, business conditions and the like. And no matter how it is masked, the masses have changed greatly over the years. In the 1950s, the ordinary American hadn't discovered Wall Street. In the 1960s, there was a great influx of "little guys," along with the growth of institutions such as mutual and pension funds. In the '70s, it appears, these institutions will dominate the market. Not only as the composition of the market changed, but there has been a change in the thinking. The 1960s were characterized by performance. Today, performance is a dirty word.

Replacing the performance game has been a return to fundamentals to analyses of management, the economy, the profit outlook and the like. It has always been so; fads are always followed by fundamentals. Find Women Still Losers In Job Field

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women are as segregated by occupation today as they were 30 years ago, President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers reports. The council found that with few exceptions, women are still stuck in low-paying jobs and encounter discrimination when they seek more lucrative careers. Its first report on the economic status of women was released Tuesday. More fact-finding and discussion of the government's role in helping women improve their situation is needed, the council said. The council cited examples of job prejudice against women: "some clients reject women lawyers, some customers reject automobile saleswomen, and some workers reject women bosses." It said employers often exaggerate the risk of a woman's job instability or her potential unacceptability to his clientele, and they screen her out of advanced training and advanced positions. "The low representation of women in positions of responsibility is striking," the report said. The CEA said many income and job differences stem from assumptions by both men and women that a woman's place is in the home and her job comes second. The council said women remain as segregated from men by occupation as they were 30 years ago.

One week after assuming his duties as Circleville Safety Director, Dr. H. H. Shuttleworth resigned. Mayor Richard L. Gerhardt announced the selection of Robert E. Adkins to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation.

Vandals set fire to the 10-foot high stump of the famous Logan Elm, all that remained of the famous tree under which Mingo Chief Logan had delivered his plea for peace. Area firefighters were forced to let the stump burn when they were unable to get their trucks through the mud.

Roundtown Players were hard at work in rehearsal for the upcoming production of "Witness for the Prosecution."

Logan Elm edged Teays Valley, 63-60, in a thrilling double overtime contest before a capacity crowd at the Vikings' gym. Royce Woolever paced the Braves with 26 points and 13 rebounds while Mike Lombardo led the Vikings with 16 tallies and 12 rebounds.

The Pickaway County Board of Elections met with County Commissioners and presented a proposal for the possible purchase of voting machines for the county.

Circleville's Craig Lambert was one of 600 gridders throughout the United States selected to the 20th Annual prep All-American Team sponsored by Coach and Athlete Magazine.

"Do I have time for some shopping?"

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I have been told I must have a sigmoidoscopy. I received very little further explanation and wonder if this procedure is a surgical one.

Mrs. J.K., Ill.

Dear Mrs. K.:

A sigmoidoscopy is not a surgical procedure. An instrument, the sigmoidoscope, is gently and painlessly inserted into the rectum. With a magnifying lens, the lower end of the large intestine can be minutely examined.

Small erosions, ulcerations, polyps, and inflammations can be studied by direct vision. When necessary, small pieces of tissues can be removed for microscopic study.

The slight discomfort of this office procedure is compensated by the valuable information attainable. These findings, in addition to the barium X-ray study of the large bowel, give your physician the information he needs for an accurate diagnosis.

I cannot help commenting on your statement that you received "very little further information" about this procedure. Sometimes patients, in their anxiety, do not remember the information given to them by a doctor. Unless one understands exactly what the doctor suggests, confusion must result.

The patient, too, plays an important role in "receiving" an explanation. Patients must repeatedly request from their doctors full explanation of the treatment they are about to receive. Without this, the relationship between the doctor and patient is in jeopardy and anxiety inevitably results.

Can you tell me something about distilled water? Would it help arthritis and improve circulation?

Mr. W.C., La.

Dear Mrs. C.:

The process of distillation occurs when water is heated to the boiling point and then the steam is allowed to condense. The process is used for the purification of water. Excess minerals and other substances are thus removed.

It is interesting that when distilled water is exposed to the air, it tends to again pick up some of the impurities in the air.

There is no relationship between the use of distilled water and arthritic or circulatory disturbances.

It really is astonishing how much misinformation arises and then is generously spread from one friend to another. That which is a source of disturbance to doctors is that people who readily accept such misinformation are less likely to seek professional advice for their medical problems.

Ski-mobiles are exciting and invigorating. Unfortunately, many young people without licenses and often without responsibility to themselves and to others are allowed to use these machines. The penalties for the serious accidents that result can last a lifetime.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — There is no limit to the number of variety of theories to explain the stock market, because there is not limit to the imagination and ambition of stock market people.

In recent days the market has been falling rather regularly, and so the explainers have been at work. They attribute the decline to the threat of more inflation, rising interest rates, a weak dollar, institutional idleness, etc. No need to list all the reasons.

Most of the time the analyses are impressively complex. But there are exceptions, and the remarkably simple January signal is one.

If you check through the first month of the year often sets the course for the months to follow. This has been the case in most of the past 20 years.

The significance at the moment is the timing. The month is coming to a close and the averages will show limited changes from their openings. For those who believe that January leads the way, it suggests a mediocre year on average.

Should credence be placed in such omen? Or are they mere chance happenings relationships and correlations and designs such as can be found in any set of figures or object if you study them long enough?

An observer is entitled to doubt their forecasting value. Any study of the market is essentially a study in mass psychology as well as economics, business conditions and the like. And no matter how it is masked, the masses have changed greatly over the years.

In the 1950s, the ordinary American hadn't discovered Wall Street. In the 1960s, there was a great influx of "little guys," along with the growth of institutions such as mutual and pension funds. In the '70s, it appears, these institutions will dominate the market.

Not only as the composition of the market changed, but there has been a change in the thinking. The 1960s were characterized by performance. Today, performance is a dirty word.

Replacing the performance game has been a return to fundamentals to analyses of management, the economy, the profit outlook and the like. It has always been so; fads are always followed by fundamentals.

Find Women Still Losers In Job Field

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women are as segregated by occupation today as they were 30 years ago, President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers reports.

The council found that with few exceptions, women are still stuck in low-paying jobs and encounter discrimination when they seek more lucrative careers. Its first report on the economic status of women was released Tuesday.

More fact-finding and discussion of the government's role in helping women improve their situation is needed, the council said.

The council cited examples of job prejudice against women: "some clients reject women lawyers, some customers reject automobile saleswomen, and some workers reject women bosses."

It said employers often exaggerate the risk of a woman's job instability or her potential unacceptability to his clientele, and they screen her out of advanced training and advanced positions.

"The low representation of women in positions of responsibility is striking," the report said.

The CEA said many income and job differences stem from assumptions by both men and women that a woman's place is in the home and her job comes second.

The council said women remain as segregated from men by occupation as they were 30 years ago.

The New Puritanism

By JEFFREY HART

I gather that in the minds of some people college students are totally given over to a life of pleasure. They are living it up on the campuses, sleeping with each other, enjoying booze, drugs, and what have you.

Forget it. The reality is, if anything, grimmer. On the campus today, as I perceive it at Dartmouth and around the Ivy League, fun is very definitely under a cloud. It is a sort of secret, personal vice. I find the students moral, or rather, moralistic, to a fault; and unable, because of the terrible weight of this moralism, to appreciate and enjoy the world as it is.

Example: This one, in particular, sticks in my mind. One of my students, a good one in the A and B range, loved skiing and was a fine skier. His father owned a ski area in the Rockies, and wanted the boy to take it over one day. The student really wanted to do this. He thought there were genuine improvements to be made. He could make it one of the nicest places to ski in the country. But would this, he wondered, be "worthwhile"? What the new moralism had told him was that the only "worthwhile" thing was going to the Congo in the Peace Corps, or living in some slum in the United States.

I have no doubt that there is useful work to be done in the Congo and in the slums, but why should that perception obliterate the value of running a good ski resort? This would, indeed, provide treasured recreation for thousands of people, businessmen, lawyers, doctors, housewives—worthy enough people whose lives are indeed valuable, even exemplary, and who like to get out for some vacation skiing. I told him to run the best ski area in the country. I don't know what he did. If he has been eaten by a crocodile he certainly deserved it.

Example: The long-time custom of choosing someone's date as Queen of the Winter Carnival at Dartmouth has been abandoned this year. Now this is certainly all right. Customs come and go. But some of the justifying rhetoric was breathtaking. No girl should be given an award, said some little Puritan in the college paper, for "mere beauty." Ponder that combination of words for a moment: "mere" beauty. As if "beauty" were some negligible thing, totally subordinated in value to other qualities, such as individual achievement, high scores on tests, athletic accomplishment, and so on. All those things are goods to be valued, of course; but "mere" beauty! What would Raphael or Tintoretto say?

Example: The more officially moral forces at Dartmouth, as at Stanford and other places, are struggling to get rid of the traditional Indian symbol associated with the college, especially in connection with the athletic teams. The officially moral forces are in some intellectual disarray in providing a justification for this stand. The Indian head symbol conventionally used is dignified, even impressive. No one, in anyone's experience, has perceived it as in any way denigrative. Over the years, most people have treasured it in a minor way. Yet we are now in a phase where the imperialism of minority groups is apparently almost irresistible. And therefore the pressure to eliminate the symbol probably cannot be successfully fought, though a good laugh would have been all it would have taken in the first place.

Somehow, the depressingly moralistic visage of Jane Fonda seems to preside over it all. That joyless, humorless Maoist face; those semi-sunken cheeks and reproving lips. Those baleful, Puritan eyes. That flat head.

Of course, the answer is laughter—bending back the fingers on the tight moralistic grip of all our Malvolos. In his "Divine Comedy," Dante says that those will be saved who "use the world well." It is a rich phrase. The world is to be loved, but it is always passing. "Mere" beauty, indeed.

State Legislators Advised Of Ohio Financial Status

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Members of the Ohio General Assembly attending a seminar turned their attention today to the problems of prisons, environmental protection and manpower training.

Tuesday lawmakers were advised of the state's financial status and heard pleas for more aid to private colleges.

Acting state Finance Director Robert Baker told the seminar, attended by only 60 of the legislature's 132 members, the new state income tax has provided "a stable tax base—one that will provide sufficient revenue so the state can meet service needs."

There will be no need for any increases in the tax rates, Baker said, because income will change with the economy.

PUCO Eyes Small Phone Companies

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Public Utilities Commission Chairman Henry Eckhart says a check needs to be made on service provided by Ohio's independent telephone companies.

Eckhart said PUCO research showed Ohio's four largest independent telephone companies are averaging about nine times the number of complaints as the two Bell companies operating in the state.

In 1971, Ohio Bell and Cincinnati Bell averaged 1.53 complaints per 10,000 main stations, Eckhart said.

In comparison, the four independent companies—United, General, Mid Continent and Northern Ohio—had an average of 16.5 complaints per 10,000 main stations.

Eckhart attributed part of the increase in complaints to a new regulation requiring all telephone companies to list the PUCO's phone number, and increased PUCO activity.

"The independent companies and the Commission must take a new hard look at service being provided to this portion of Ohio's telephone subscribers," he said.

FDA Ponders Approval Of Pill

The agency said it will keep secret the recommendations of an advisory committee.

The most commonly prescribed "morning-after," or postcoital, birth control drug is diethylstilbestrol (DES), recently linked to rare vaginal and uterine cancer in scores of young women whose mothers took it during pregnancy to prevent miscarriages.

Small Town Survives Advent Of Interstate

CARROLLTON, Ky. (AP) — No need to pity this small riverfront community. The concrete snake we call an interstate highway did no great harm. In fact, it's been a boon.

Like hundreds of other little towns, Carrollton was fearful when the traffic flow from its main street, a major intercity highway, was siphoned off by the new interstate four miles away.

"I'd say at least half of the town was afraid, especially the fellows who depended on tourists—like me," Tommy Combs, owner of a small motel, said.

Carrollton, population 4,200, is situated on U.S. 42, halfway between Louisville and Cincinnati. It has both the Ohio and Kentucky rivers on its borders, but isn't a port of call for either of them.

For years, the steady parade of cars and trucks poured through the town, a percentage of them stopping for rest, food or lodging and making Carrollton just a little bit richer.

Then, in the summer of 1969, I-71 was opened to traffic.

"So many people here made the remark that they'd seen other towns where the interstates killed 'em," Randall Kelly, a liquor store clerk, recalled.

But, for Carrollton, it wasn't that way at all. If anything, the community has prospered since that summer day in 1969 and the concrete snake called I-71 has helped it.

"When the interstate road first opened, we had a reduction in traffic flow, of course," H. C. Fryman, assistant cashier at a local bank, said.

"But this was mainly heavy trucks and that sort of thing and those people weren't stopping here much anyway. For them, our being centrally located didn't mean much. They just wanted to get to Louisville or Cincinnati as fast as they could," he added.

William G. "Butch" Livesay, who operates a restaurant and bar, figures the profit and loss regarding the interstate just about balanced out as far as Carrollton was concerned.

And having a state park next door was the key, he said.

"Sure there was a lot of traffic here on 42, but the volume is probably double or triple that on I-71 and if you've got that many people on the interstate, there are bound to be more that stop off," he said.

"And, in the summer, we have a lot of tourist trade and Gen. Butler State Park brings a lot of that," his wife, Lynne, said.

Then, too, Carrollton now is the world's second largest Burley tobacco market "and I think that helps bring people into the town," waitress Emma Sherman said.

During the 15 years that I-71 was on the drawing board, industry came to Carrollton. Dow Corning has a plant just outside town; a division of American Can Co. is situated closer to the city limits and Kentucky Utilities Co. has an expanding power plant eight miles north, at Ghent, Ky.

"We never would have bought up this plant site except for the interstate," Arthur Mandell, plant manager for American Can's M&T chemical plant, said, adding that he employs 310 persons.

Of course, everyone couldn't profit from the new road. "It always happens to a small town. When you get good roads leading out of it, your customers leave home to shop," grocer Harold Carlisle said.

"But, really, I can't see much difference in my business," he added.

GOP Withholds Bonus Support

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Republicans in the Ohio House will withhold their support of a Vietnam veterans' bonus tied to an increase in property taxes to finance the $300 million proposal, Minority Leader Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg, announced today.

He made the announcement at a news conference at which he called for a series of tax reforms he said Republicans will promote in the coming weeks during discussions of Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan's two-year, $9.7 billion budget.

The former speaker said Republicans feel that the Vietnam bonus can be financed from the state's general revenue fund without proposing an increase in property taxes which the legislature has been trying to reduce "the past several years."

County Judge John P. Tilley also noted that U.S. 42 still is traveled by those "who aren't in a hurry, mostly the scenic types" and concluded they're more likely to stop and shop.

Small Town Survives Advent Of Interstate

CARROLLTON, Ky. (AP) — No need to pity this small riverfront community. The concrete snake we call an interstate highway did no great harm. In fact, it's been a boon.

Like hundreds of other little towns, Carrollton was fearful when the traffic flow from its main street, a major intercity highway, was siphoned off by the new interstate four miles away.

"I'd say at least half of the town was afraid, especially the fellows who depended on tourists—like me," Tommy Combs, owner of a small motel, said.

Carrollton, population 4,200, is situated on U.S. 42, halfway between Louisville and Cincinnati. It has both the Ohio and Kentucky rivers on its borders, but isn't a port of call for either of them.

For years, the steady parade of cars and trucks poured through the town, a percentage of them stopping for rest, food or lodging and making Carrollton just a little bit richer.

Then, in the summer of 1969, I-71 was opened to traffic.

"So many people here made the remark that they'd seen other towns where the interstates killed 'em," Randall Kelly, a liquor store clerk, recalled.

But, for Carrollton, it wasn't that way at all. If anything, the community has prospered since that summer day in 1969 and the concrete snake called I-71 has helped it.

"When the interstate road first opened, we had a reduction in traffic flow, of course," H. C. Fryman, assistant cashier at a local bank, said.

"But this was mainly heavy trucks and that sort of thing and those people weren't stopping here much anyway. For them, our being centrally located didn't mean much. They just wanted to get to Louisville or Cincinnati as fast as they could," he added.

William G. "Butch" Livesay, who operates a restaurant and bar, figures the profit and loss regarding the interstate just about balanced out as far as Carrollton was concerned.

And having a state park next door was the key, he said.

"Sure there was a lot of traffic here on 42, but the volume is probably double or triple that on I-71 and if you've got that many people on the interstate, there are bound to be more that stop off," he said.

"And, in the summer, we have a lot of tourist trade and Gen. Butler State Park brings a lot of that," his wife, Lynne, said.

Then, too, Carrollton now is the world's second largest Burley tobacco market "and I think that helps bring people into the town," waitress Emma Sherman said.

During the 15 years that I-71 was on the drawing board, industry came to Carrollton. Dow Corning has a plant just outside town; a division of American Can Co. is situated closer to the city limits and Kentucky Utilities Co. has an expanding power plant eight miles north, at Ghent, Ky.

"We never would have bought up this plant site except for the interstate," Arthur Mandell, plant manager for American Can's M&T chemical plant, said, adding that he employs 310 persons.

County Judge John P. Tilley also noted that U.S. 42 still is traveled by those "who aren't in a hurry, mostly the scenic types" and concluded they're more likely to stop and shop.

Marriage To Cannibal Doesn't Worry Son

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The reason his mother married a cannibal chieftain in Indonesia was to gain material for a book on primitive customs, says the son of explorer Wyn Sargent.

"My mom knows what she's doing," Jim Sargent, 17, said Tuesday. "Mom is writing a book. It's all about customs and things. And the best way to get the material...."

Reagan May Run For Senate Post

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan says he won't seek a third term, even if party leaders attempt to draft him. But Reagan has left open the possibility of seeking the U.S. Senate seat of Democrat Alan Cranston in 1974.

Reagan, who will be 62 next week, announced Tuesday he will not seek a third term, and he said he has no timetable for announcing whether he will go up against Cranston, who plans to seek re-election.

The slate of officers for the year of Ladies Auxiliary, Clearcreek Twp. Fire Department, were named during the first meeting of 1973 Monday evening at the fire house.

Assuming their duties were: Phyllis Hartley, president; Catherine Hartley, vice president; Joyce Butterbaugh, secretary; Ann Brobst, treasurer and Olive Lovett, news reporter.

The new president opened the meeting by leading in repeating "The Lord's Prayer." Eighteen members answered roll call. It was announced that March 31st was the date chosen by the men for their annual Spring Consignment Sale. More discussion will be held on the lunch plans for the sale.

Mrs. Hartley also announced that the firemen had extended an invitation to all auxiliary members for an evening out in March. It was decided to have a Mother-Daughter carry-in banquet at the February meeting.

Farm Property Tax Rates Eyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A proposed constitutional amendment to lower taxes on farm property was tightened up Tuesday night and recommended for passage by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The proposal, slated for a place on the May primary ballot, provides assessment changes so that farmers on land near developing and urban areas would not be assessed at rates out of proportion to a farmer's income.

Specifically, the amendment gives power to the legislature to permit assessment of farm property at the value it has for agricultural use, instead of the present market value. It also provides that taxing units may defer payments of the difference between use and market assessments, and recover that amount when the property is sold.

Ohio's Unemployment Rate Shows Decline

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The pre-Christmas economic boom helped lower Ohio's December unemployment rate three-tenths of one per cent, according to state Bureau of Employment Services' figures released Monday.

The December rate of 3.7 per cent placed 170,000 Ohioans on the unemployment list, compared with November's 4 per cent or 181,000.

State Power Plant Planned To Heat 5 Office Buildings

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— State Public Works Director R. Wilson Neff, said Tuesday, that construction of a new power plant to heat five state buildings will probably begin this summer.

The public works director said the old heating plant at the Ohio Penitentiary would probably be disposed of, along with the rest of the prison.

The State Controlling Board authorized $665,000 to the Public Workers Department for construction of the plant Monday.

The move comes in spite of an announcement by Gov. John Gilligan, in his Jan. 17 budget message, that the Spring Street institution would be destroyed, except for the power plant and the honor dormitory.

The governor had said that those facilities would be necessary to maintain various state operations in the downtown Columbus area.

Records show that the controlling board received the public works proposal for the new plant Jan. 4. An engineering feasibility plan, included in the proposal, had a cover letter dated Dec. 11.

On Dec. 11, Bennett Cooper, director of the Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Corrections, announced plans to close the pen by the end of June.

According to Public Works sources, engineering studies showed the roof of the Transportation Building, where the power plant is to be located, will support two "package boilers" and other equipment. The boilers weigh approximately 50,000 pounds each and together will cost about $186,000.

The plant will be fueled by diesel oil. The penitentiary plant was coal fed. A tank capable of holding 60,000 gallons of fuel is to be buried on the west side of the Transportation Building.

The Transportation Building, the Ohio Departments Building, the Bureau of Employment Services, the State house and the Wyandott Building will be heated by the new system.

ACLU Chief Raps Ohio Judiciary

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The 36-year-old leader of the American Civil Liberties Union of Ohio would rather fight for constitutional rights in federal courts than in state courts.

Benson Wolman says the reason is that federal courts are "more attuned to constitutional questions and more insulated from the whims and caprices of the public."

State judges, he contended, feel public pressures and respond to them, often to the detriment of constitutional rights, because they must seek re-election.

"Election bears too great a weight with them," he said.

"We have not filed a civil liberties suit in a state court seeking vindication of a U.S. constitutional right, except for once, in the last five years," said Wolman.

That one case, he recalled, involved a federal court ruling that a taxpayer's suit should be filed in a state court. When Ohio Tax Commissioner Robert Kosydar filed suit in a state court last year seeking a constitutional ruling on Ohio's new parochial aid law, Wolman saw it was a tactical move.

"Their move was tactical because they filed the suit in a state court to get a forum conducive to their views," he said. "I was in South Dakota at the time and when I found out, the ACLU had the suit moved to the federal court within hours."

The move to federal court meant a victory for the ACLU. Last month, the three-judge federal panel in Columbus ruled the law unconstitutional. The statute would have provided $90 a year per pupil in tax credits to parents of non-public school students.

But the issue has not been settled. The state plans to appeal the lower federal court ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Wolman lamented what he called "the sad commentary on state courts" that causes the ACLU to believe it must go to federal courts to preserve constitutional rights.

He suggested that state judges be appointed by the governor, subject to the approval of the Ohio Senate. Under such a system, he said, pressure of public opinion and re-election would be removed and constitutional issues could be viewed more clearly.

But for Wolman the problem does not stop there. "We also need better qualified judges who are willing to work. A high quality state judiciary would mean that the federal courts would not be overworked."

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Turns Cold Shoulder On Gesundheit

DEAR ABBY: What would you have done in a case like this? A girl in our office sneezed, so I said, "God bless you." Instead of thanking me, she said, "You don't have to bother with that. I'm an atheist!"

NON PLUSED

DEAR NON: I wouldn't have done anything. But the next time she sneezes, tell her to take good care of herself because if she ever gets pneumonia she won't have a prayer.

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe I am actually writing a "Dear Abby" letter. My husband just left for "Bosses Night" and I'm sitting here with red eyes.

"Bosses Night" is a once-a-year affair, which features dinner, live music, and no spouses! My husband thinks it's nice. I think it stinks!

I told my husband that if my work had a similar function, he would strongly object to my going, and to make him happy I would stay home.

He said I was all upset for nothing. Am I? How would you handle this next year?

FEELING BLUE & SEEING RED
DEAR SEEING: I would get together with a few of the other "bosses' wives" and treat myself to the best entertainment in town.

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating this girl for a year or so. Things were pretty tight between us. We were supposed to go ice skating last week, but something came up and I absolutely could not make it. I didn't want my girl to sit home, so I asked my best friend to take her.

Well, he took her all right. It turned out he took her skating on Wednesday, to dinner on Thursday, to play tennis on Friday, and to a drive-in movie on Sunday. He would have taken her out Saturday night, too, but he had to work.

I didn't expect this to happen because we were such good friends I thought I could trust him. What should I do?

DON

DEAR DON: Start looking for another girl. But don't blame your friend. If your girl was really "your" girl, she wouldn't have been so easily lured away.

DEAR ABBY: Your computer date girl who was taken for $295 by a phony dating bureau is all wrong. Even though her contract contained phrases like "cannot guarantee" and "when-ever possible," they did guarantee some effort on their part, and they are indeed liable for this effort.

By analogy, a medical doctor may state honestly that he cannot guarantee the success of a given treatment or operation. Now, if said

"We have not filed a civil liberties suit in a state court seeking vindication of a U.S. constitutional right, except for once, in the last five years," said Wolman.

That one case, he recalled, involved a federal court ruling that a taxpayer's suit should be filed in a state court.

When Ohio Tax Commissioner Robert Kosydar filed suit in a state court last year seeking a constitutional ruling on Ohio's new parochial aid law, Wolman saw it was a tactical move.

"Their move was tactical because they filed the suit in a state court to get a forum conducive to their views," he said. "I was in South Dakota at the time and when I found out, the ACLU had the suit moved to the federal court within hours."

The move to federal court meant a victory for the ACLU. Last month, the three-judge federal panel in Columbus ruled the law unconstitutional. The statute would have provided $90 a year per pupil in tax credits to parents of non-public school students.

But the issue has not been settled. The state plans to appeal the lower federal court ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Wolman lamented what he called "the sad commentary on state courts" that causes the ACLU to believe it must go to federal courts to preserve constitutional rights.

He suggested that state judges be appointed by the governor, subject to the approval of the Ohio Senate. Under such a system, he said, pressure of public opinion and re-election would be removed and constitutional issues could be viewed more clearly.

But for Wolman the problem does not stop there. "We also need better qualified judges who are willing to work. A high quality state judiciary would mean that the federal courts would not be overworked."

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Turns Cold Shoulder On Gesundheit

DEAR ABBY: What would you have done in a case like this? A girl in our office sneezed, so I said, "God bless you." Instead of thanking me, she said, "You don't have to bother with that. I'm an atheist!"

NON PLUSED

DEAR NON: I wouldn't have done anything. But the next time she sneezes, tell her to take good care of herself because if she ever gets pneumonia she won't have a prayer.

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe I am actually writing a "Dear Abby" letter. My husband just left for "Bosses Night" and I'm sitting here with red eyes.

"Bosses Night" is a once-a-year affair, which features dinner, live music, and no spouses! My husband thinks it's nice. I think it stinks!

I told my husband that if my work had a similar function, he would strongly object to my going, and to make him happy I would stay home.

He said I was all upset for nothing. Am I? How would you handle this next year?

FEELING BLUE & SEEING RED

DEAR SEEING: I would get together with a few of the other "bosses' wives" and treat myself to the best entertainment in town.

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating this girl for a year or so. Things were pretty tight between us. We were supposed to go ice skating last week, but something came up and I absolutely could not make it. I didn't want my girl to sit home, so I asked my best friend to take her.

Well, he took her all right. It turned out he took her skating on Wednesday, to dinner on Thursday, to play tennis on Friday, and to a drive-in movie on Sunday. He would have taken her out Saturday night, too, but he had to work.

I didn't expect this to happen because we were such good friends I thought I could trust him. What should I do?

DON

DEAR DON: Start looking for another girl. But don't blame your friend. If your girl was really "your" girl, she wouldn't have been so easily lured away.

DEAR ABBY: Your computer date girl who was taken for $295 by a phony dating bureau is all wrong. Even though her contract contained phrases like "cannot guarantee" and "when-ever possible," they did guarantee some effort on their part, and they are indeed liable for this effort.

By analogy, a medical doctor may state honestly that he cannot guarantee the success of a given treatment or operation. Now, if said doctor performs honestly and fails, that's one thing. But if he merely fails to perform, or performs negligently, that's something else again.

The date bureau agreed to do certain things, and if they did not fulfill their promised obligations, they are nothing but "sweet sue-able"-and the sooner we sue this kind of "sue-age" the better.

U.S. Army Runs 'Charm School'

FT. LEE, Va. (AP) — Here the Army trains soldiers—to make tasty penguins out of hard-boiled eggs, carve swans out of ice, groom dogs and empty ash trays.

Other lessons range from bartending to flower arranging.

The purpose is to prepare enlisted men, all volunteers for the program, for the job of making Army generals and their families more comfortable. Or, as an Army spokesman explains it, "to put the commanding officer and his family in the forefront of the Army installation and the community."

Some program critics call the personal aides servants. Most generals get one aide for each star on their shoulders.

A General Accounting Office report says that in pay and allowances alone the personal aides program costs the Army $3.6 million yearly. The Navy spends $4.4 million, the Air Force $4.3 million and the Marines $837,000 on similar programs, the report says.

What sort of enlisted man volunteers to be an aide?

"It takes a special boy, one who will take an order from a female, like the general's wife," a spokesman at Ft. Lee replied.

During a visit to Ft. Lee, an officer was asked directions to the training school. "An enlisted aides course?" he said. "Oh, you mean the charm school. Over there."

He pointed to a two-story, World War II-era building that has been remodeled to include five apartments. Each resembles a general's quarters and includes a living room, dining room, two bedrooms and a bathroom. Red and white carnations are carefully arranged on many tables.

The Army's enlisted aides course has been located in the building since the program started in January 1969. Courses are given six times a year, and the Army reports a total of 404 graduates. The waiting list of generals requesting aides is now at about 80. Some generals don't ask for aides, according to the spokesman.

He said soldiers spend 70 hours learning the duties and responsibilities of an enlisted aide, 109 hours on management of dining facilities and 137 hours on "the advanced principles of cooking, baking and garnishing."

Duties listed in the course outline include pet care, cleaning a general's quarters, care of officer's uniform and equipment, preparation of center pieces and ice carvings and watering plants.

Helping a general's wife includes reminding her of appointments, providing her with transportation and assisting her role as hostess, according to the outline.

POW Returnees Awaited; Believe Friday May Be Day

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — They wait impatiently under the torrid sun — psychiatrists and surgeons, intelligence specialists and social workers, tailors and technicians.

There have been so many new arrivals that every bed on this U.S. Air Force base in the Southwest Pacific — the largest outside the United States — has been filled. The overflow has moved into the garish hotels of Angeles City outside the gates.

Also waiting are a score of jet aircraft with crews on full alert, a task force of Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine officers manning a command post, and a nearly empty hospital.

As they wait, their thoughts are on another group waiting 1,000 miles away — the nearly 600 American military and civilian prisoners held in the prisons of Hanoi and the jungle hideouts of the Viet Cong somewhere in South Vietnam.

"By God, when will they be coming?" asked a corpsman who will help in the medical rehabilitation of the returning POWs. That same question is being asked by the officers in the "Operation Homecoming" command post.

The answer is up to Hanoi.

The peace agreement provides for the return of the POWs at 15-day intervals. Since Monday the task force assembled at Clark had been on partial alert. Now it is on full alert.

"Hanoi could decide any hour to release them," commented an official close to the command center. "But we are picking probably Friday as the most likely time. I can't tell you why, but everything points to that day."

Of concern here is the medical condition of the POWs. The fourth and fifth floors of Clark's hospital have been set aside for the POWs, and provisions have been made to use the first and third floors if necessary, virtually turning the whole installation over to the POWs.

The Operation Homecoming staff at Clark has been ordered to move the POWs through to the United States as rapidly as possible after their arrival.

Study 5 Office Complexes To Satisfy State's Needs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Public Works has been developing a long-range plan for state office space needs that focuses on the

Propane Needs Nearly Complete

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — With 99 per cent of Ohio's corn crop and 92 per cent of the soybeans harvested, there no longer is a large demand for propane gas to dry the grain, the Public Utility Commission says.

John Gordon, commission director of transportation, said the commission still has about 450,000 gallons of propane to allocate to distributors who might need it.

There was a crucial shortage of propane gas in January when farmers needed it to dry water-logged crops at a time when the fuel was needed to heat homes and businesses.

Harvesting had to await a hard freeze because of muddy fields resulting from extended wet weather late last year.

construction of about five small office complexes in downtown Columbus.

Public Works Director R. Wilson Neff said Wednesday that he favors building "a few" small office complexes rather than renting space or building another structure like the 41-story office tower now under construction.

Neff said his department is studying the state's space needs for the next 15 years with an eye towards meeting Gov. John Gilligan's goal of centralized offices in Columbus.

"We would feel that the state should own its own complexes," the director said.

"Obviously, something needs to be done if the state departments are going to be combined in a central location," he said. "Our feeling is that we want to go to smaller buildings which maintain a functional identity and that are more noticeable to the public."

As an example, Neff said, "It is natural to think of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio and the Departments of Commerce and Insurance in a commercial building."

He also suggested combination of the departments of Employment Services and Welfare and the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation in a social services building.

Neff said the buildings should be small enough to be convenient to the public, but he added, "Guessing what size these offices are going to be is an exercise in itself."

Although the new 41-story office tower will provide more than one million square feet of space when it opens in 1974, the public works director said more space will be needed for departments not to be located in the structure.

Seek Resumption Of Library Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Library Association Council urged Congress Tuesday to reverse President Nixon's budget recommendations, which would end most federal aid to libraries.

The unanimous vote on a resolution came after Joseph Shubert, director of the Ohio State Library at Columbus and chairman of the association's legislation committee, told the council about $166 million is at stake in the next fiscal year.

In addition, Shubert said, $29 million is involved in this fiscal year because of Nixon's veto of two money bills for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

John Hartford Symbolizes Nashville Style

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — It began like any other day would for John Hartford—plane reservations, a concert itinerary that needed double checking and, because he was in Nashville, some recording.

But, after the routine stuff was dispensed with, he began doing things that gave an insight into why this town's music atmosphere is like no other.

Hartford, the first of Nashville's so-called first generation of musicians to attain wide popularity, came here one day last week from a road tour to lend his talents to an album being made by Vassar Clements, the famed fiddler.

Once that was done, Hartford skipped around town to see old friends. What came of all that, to some, would have been momentous.

After he got the day's business chores out of the way early, Hartford dropped into a small, elite guitar shop behind the Grand Ole Opry. The shop's owner, George Gruhn, is a friend of Hartford, who had gone there to buy a fiddle case.

Gruhn produced his fiddle, made in 1815, and told Hartford to try his hand at it. What happened next was a musical excursion.

Hartford began to cut down on that fiddle like it was his last farewell and obviously was enthralled with the sound emitted by the fine instrument.

Then, Doug Green—an accomplished local guitarist who works at the shop—began picking and singing with Hartford. Moments later, another shop worker grabbed an antique banjo from a display window and chipped in his two bits.

It went that way for nearly an hour. All the while customers walked in and out—stopping momentarily to listen to some fine music—and many were unaware that it was Hartford, the master of "Gentle On My Mind" that they were hearing.

By this time it was late afternoon and Hartford had a few more business matters to clarify. A short time later, he started the musical ball rolling again, at a place called Jocks.

Jocks had an act booked for that evening consisting of Clements and Buddy Martin, a fiddler of Opry fame. Hartford slipped in on the whole affair with his banjo in hand—and wound up playing and singing through three sets into the late night hours.

Had Nashville's music freaks known Hartford was playing at Jocks, the place would have been overrun. But even Jocks didn't know it, until it happened.

Then it was back to the studio for some more fun picking and recording in the wee morning hours.

In all, it was the kind of thing that has made Nashville notorious as a free-swinging, easy-going music town that does as many things spontaneously as it does rehearsed.

Hartford, 35, came to Nashville as a disc jockey eight years ago from Malden, Mo. He was playing mostly bluegrass music then, which at the time was unfashionable for the young, long-haired set.

Today, however, young and old alike cram concert halls to hear Hartford. He picks a banjo like no other man has ever successfully attempted—seven frets below the normal range—and blends it all with lyrics unparalleled in bluegrass-folk circles. His style, for sure, is enjoyably unique.

Hartford's latest album, Morning Bugle, shows off his real brilliance. It offers more, both technically and lyrically, than his previous album, Aereo Plain, outstanding in its own right.

But bluegrass, he concedes, "is where my heart lies." Asked to explain its rising popularity, Hartford offered an historical comparison of it with folk music in the early 60s.

"What we're doing now in rock music is simply a logical progression of rock in the 50s," he said, noting that the early rock era preceded the soft sounds of folk and the hootenanny days.

"So, man, with bluegrass we're just in another chapter of the hootenanny era," he theorized.

"I like the ego trip of playing music," he said. "You have to if you like playing bluegrass music because no one's going to make any money off of it."

Hartford, recently, has been living in Los Angeles, but Nashville is his musical home. Yet there's one thing he dislikes about the country music capital.

"They're tearing down everything that I came here for," he said, referring to plans to destroy the Grand Ole Opry and rebuild it, as a modern structure, outside town near Opryland USA.

Hartford has two songs in which he sympathetically gives his version of Nashville's so-called progress. One is about the Opry's destruction; the other foretells of a day when Nashville's musical vintage will be gone—found instead in Opryland, a modern-day recreation and rides park.

"I just hate to see Walt Disney influencing the Grand Ole Opry" was how Hartford put it.

Licking County Farmer Set To Emigrate; Hates War

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — At age 66, Robert Schroer is emigrating to Argentina because he hates the war in Vietnam.

Not even the prospect of an early cease-fire deters him.

"I decided last spring I couldn't take it any more," said the Licking County turkey farmer.

"I'm a farmer and I produce food. I felt as long as I stayed in this country I was part of what it was doing. I just didn't want the blood-guilt any more."

So, Schroer said he was selling his 180-acre farm and leaving the United States for good, "as soon as the sorghum harvest is in." That's about a month away.

Schroer, a fruit and turkey farmer in Licking County since 1937, picked Argentina as his haven because it was "the farthest place from war I could think of." Buenos Aires, the Argentine capital, is about 6,000 miles south of Ohio.

When the Vietnam war started, "we didn't talk about it much," he recalled, "but I knew what we were doing over there was murder. Just like Hitler murdering the Jews."

He hesitated. "But I guess we'll never really know how many we've killed over there."

For the past three years Schroer said he's been joining in protest demonstrations at nearby Denison University and taking out anti-war ads in the local newspaper.

"Some people didn't like me for it, but I'd been against the war so long by then, it didn't matter much."

One who opposed Schroer's views was one of his own sons, a navigator for Air Force B-52's making bombing raids over North Vietnam.

"We don't see eye to eye at all," admitted Schroer.

As for his other five children and his wife, "I expect they're in favor of what I'm doing and why I'm doing it," he said.

He said he expected his wife to join him in South America after disposing of the family business.

John Hartford Symbolizes Nashville Style

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — It began like any other day would for John Hartford—plane reservations, a concert itinerary that needed double checking and, because he was in Nashville, some recording.

But, after the routine stuff was dispensed with, he began doing things that gave an insight into why this town's music atmosphere is like no other.

Hartford, the first of Nashville's so-called hip generation of musicians to attain wide popularity, came here one day last week from a road tour to lend his talents to an album being made by Vassar Clements, the famed fiddler. Once that was done, Hartford skipped around town to see old friends. What came of all that, to some, would have been momentous.

After he got the day's business chores out of the way early, Hartford dropped into a small, elite guitar shop behind the Grand Ole Opry. The shop's owner, George Gruhn, is a friend of Hartford, who had gone there to buy a fiddle case.

Gruhn produced his fiddle, made in 1815, and told Hartford to try his hand at it. What happened next was a musical excursion.

Hartford began to cut down on that fiddle like it was his last farewell and obviously was enthralled with the sound emitted by the fine instrument.

Then, Doug Green—an accomplished local guitarist who works at the shop—began picking and singing with Hartford. Moments later, another shop worker grabbed an antique banjo from a display window and chipped in his two bits.

It went that way for nearly an hour. All the while customers walked in and out—stopping momentarily to listen to some fine music—and many were unaware that it was Hartford, the master of "Gentle On My Mind" that they were hearing.

By this time it was late afternoon and Hartford had a few more business matters to clarify. A short time later, he started the musical ball rolling again, at a place called Jocks.

Jocks had an act booked for that evening consisting of Clements and Buddy Martin, a fiddler of Opry fame. Hartford slipped in on the whole affair with his banjo in hand—and wound up playing and singing through three sets into the late night hours.

Had Nashville's music freaks known Hartford was playing at Jocks, the place would have been overrun. But even Jocks didn't know it, until it happened.

Then it was back to the studio for some more fun picking and recording in the wee morning hours.

In all, it was the kind of thing that has made Nashville notorious as a free-swinging, easy-going music town that does as many things spontaneously as it does rehearsed.

Farmers Counting Up Harvest Costs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio farmers sweat and strained this year to switch a disastrous growing season into a delightful payoff.

They hiked their total estimated income by 7 per cent, up to $1.591 billion. That gave them an edge over 1971 of about $104 million.

New Zealand Bull Claims Record

WELLINGTON (AP) — Fifty thousand daughters of the late Ridge Lee Master Owl are living in New Zealand, and perhaps not surprisingly his friends are claiming old Ridge Lee was a world beater.

The poor old fellow died recently, seven years after joining the New Zealand Dairy Board's pedigree Jersey bull team of sires.

In his day Ridge Lee was responsible for the insemination of 290,000 dairy cows. About 150,000 of his inseminations were successful and there would have been at least 70,000 females (slightly more male cattle are born than females). So the dairy people are agreed that at least 50,000 of the old boy's daughters are on New Zealand dairy farms today.

But, before celebrating, Ohioans have to count heavy extra costs harvesting their bogged-down crops and more banged-up machinery than any year ought to exact. No one really knows the total toll, may never know.

"It was one of the most frustrating seasons," said Dan C. Tucker, U.S. Department of Agriculture statistical chief in Columbus, one of the wettest falls in the books.

After 10 months of 1972, Ohio figured to cash in 13 per cent more income than in the previous year. The comparison through October was $1.251 billion last year compared to $1.115 billion in the first 10 months of 1971 and 1971 was a banner crop year.

But, at normal harvest time the fields were nearly bottomless mud. The entire crop still isn't harvested, despite three January weeks of hard fields on which machinery could maneuver.

Tucker estimated that 95 per cent of both corn and soybean crops are in at month's end.

Soybeans suffered most. The average 1972 yield was 27 bushels to the acre, compared to 30.5 bushels in 1971. But, the average price per bushel this year was $3.40 a bushel compared to only $3.04 a bushel in 1971.

That makes the soybean crop work

Townships To Update Mileage

A representative of the Planning Survey Section of the State Highway Department will meet with Pickaway County Engineer Henry McCrady Tuesday to determine with township trustees the total miles of roads within the county and township.

Ohio's General Code, specifically the "Wheeler Bill," authorizes the Director of Highways to correctly determine the number of miles of county roads within each county and township roads within each township.

The Planning Survey Section of the Highway Department has completed a survey of county and township roads within Pickaway County.

Due to the discrepancies of mileage totals as reported by the individual township, and the mileage inventory as found by the Planning Survey, a detailed reconciliation of the township's mileage is necessary prior to making final payment of 1972 license revenues.

Trustees or their representatives may meet with McCrady and the survey representative between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Tuesday in the engineer's office at the Pickaway County Courthouse.

Bondsman Arrested For Money Theft

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A bondsman needed a bondsman himself Wednesday after he was charged with "fishing" envelopes containing $981 for other bonds from a safe in the Hamilton County Clerk's office.

James Brooksbank, 32, of Cincinnati, was held to the Hamilton County grand jury under $100 bond. The money was taken during the night of Jan. 21, police said.

last year was $1.33 a bushel, in 1971 only $1.06 a bushel.

Corn crop value was $371 million last year compared to $342 million in banner 1971.

The corn cash figure is more than somewhat artificial, however, since about 45 per cent of the corn grown on Ohio farms is not sold, but fed back to Ohio animals.

At this fairly stable rate, farmers actually sold only about $152.9 million of their corn crop, feeding the rest. Livestock produces about 54 per cent of Ohio's total farm income with crops accounting for 46 per cent.

High Court To Review Death Case

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's Supreme Court has agreed to look into a question of whether a Franklin County youth should go on trial as an adult on a murder charge.

It accepted for review Wednesday the case of Charles E. Carmichael, charged with first-degree murder in the shooting June 25, 1971, of Donald Reed of Columbus.

The defendant was ordered by the Franklin County Juvenile Court to stand trial as an adult over defense objections claiming the order resulted from hearsay evidence.

In other cases, the court let stand the conviction of Robert Ware on four counts of first-degree manslaughter stemming from an interstate highway crash which killed four persons, and left undisturbed second-degree murder and shooting with intent to kill convictions of William Brady Kearns of Ironton.

Records showed Ware's car was going the wrong way on Interstate 75 in Warren County when it crashed into another vehicle driven by Frances A. Rudokas, who was killed, along with Alice Rowe, Carol Ann Pfau, and Elizabeth Spillmore.

The conviction of Kearns in Lawrence County Common Pleas Court followed the May 17, 1970, fatal shooting of Joseph Campbell and the wounding of Raymond Campbell in the same incident.

Drawbridge Snags Auto; Elderly Ladies Get Ride

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — When Clayton Gignac opened his drawbridge, he couldn't figure out why the sailboat captain below him was frantically pointing to the sky — until he looked up and saw a car carrying four elderly women caught on an open edge of the span.

Madeleine Dow, 74, Norah Bennett, 75, Margaret Strype, 77, and Olive M. Bomb, 78, four vacationing Canadians, were perched 35 feet above Boca Ciega Bay in an 11-year-old borrowed car.

The undercarriage of their car was snagged on the edge of the open, tilted bridge section. The front part of the car pointed downhill, the rear section projected over the open water.

For more than an hour, the women passed the time by looking at the view. The episode began Tuesday when Mrs. Dow drove her son's 1962 auto onto the Treasure Island Bridge. She said later she didn't hear the warning bells or see the gates come down behind the car as she headed across the drawspan.

Witnesses said she backed up but was only about half way across the dividing line when the bridge's two sections parted.

While the ladies prayed and looked around, the seawalls collected an audience of hundreds, the bay below became clogged with boats, 15 emergency vehicles sped to the scene, 25 police and firemen converged on the bridge, and rush hour traffic backed up for 10 miles.

The first thing the firemen did was turn off the car's engine. Then they secured the body of the car to the bridge grates.

Eventually a big snorkel truck from the St. Petersburg Fire Department arrived at the scene.

One by one the women, clasped in protective bear-hugs by firemen, made it into the snorkel truck's basket and were lowered to safety.

The firemen got the car down an hour later by gingerly lowering the bridge.

"What we need," said Mrs. Dow after it all was over, "is a good drink."

FBI Questions Man With Gun

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP)—A man was held for questioning by the FBI today after a pistol was found on his person as he passed through a metal detector device at the Greater Cincinnati Airport near here, an airport spokesman said.

Ted Bushelman, airport public relations spokesman, said the identity of the man was not immediately known.

He said the man was detained by an airport security guard, who was working near the metal detector at the entrance to one of the airport's three concourses.

Farmers Counting Up Harvest Costs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio farmers sweat and strained this year to switch a disastrous growing season into a delightful payoff.

They hiked their total estimated income by 7 per cent, up to $1.591 billion. That gave them an edge over 1971 of about $104 million.

New Zealand Bull Claims Record

WELLINGTON (AP) — Fifty thousand daughters of the late Ridge Lee Master Owl are living in New Zealand, and perhaps not surprisingly his friends are claiming old Ridge Lee was a world beater.

The poor old fellow died recently, seven years after joining the New Zealand Dairy Board's pedigree Jersey bull team of sires.

In his day Ridge Lee was responsible for the insemination of 290,000 dairy cows. About 150,000 of his inseminations were successful and there would have been at least 70,000 females (slightly more male cattle are born than females). So the dairy people are agreed that at least 50,000 of the old boy's daughters are on New Zealand dairy farms today.

But, before celebrating, Ohioans have to count heavy extra costs harvesting their bogged-down crops and more banged-up machinery than any year ought to exact. No one really knows the total toll, may never know.

"It was one of the most frustrating seasons," said Dan C. Tucker, U.S. Department of Agriculture statistical chief in Columbus, one of the wettest falls in the books.

After 10 months of 1972, Ohio figured to cash in 13 per cent more income than in the previous year. The comparison through October was $1.251 billion last year compared to $1.115 billion in the first 10 months of 1971 and 1971 was a banner crop year.

But, at normal harvest time the fields were nearly bottomless mud. The entire crop still isn't harvested, despite three January weeks of hard fields on which machinery could maneuver.

Tucker estimated that 95 per cent of both corn and soybean crops are in at month's end.

Soybeans suffered most. The average 1972 yield was 27 bushels to the acre, compared to 30.5 bushels in 1971. But, the average price per bushel this year was $3.40 a bushel compared to only $3.04 a bushel in 1971.

That makes the soybean crop work

$278 million in 1972, only $247 million in 1971.

Corn enjoyed a similar edge. Average yield was 90 bushel to the acre compared to the previous record of 91 bushels in 1971, and the average price

Townships To Update Mileage

A representative of the Planning Survey Section of the State Highway Department will meet with Pickaway County Engineer Henry McCrady Tuesday to determine with township trustees the total miles of roads within the county and township.

Ohio's General Code, specifically the "Wheeler Bill," authorizes the Director of Highways to correctly determine the number of miles of county roads within each county and township roads within each township.

The Planning Survey Section of the Highway Department has completed a survey of county and township roads within Pickaway County.

Due to the discrepancies of mileage totals as reported by the individual township, and the mileage inventory as found by the Planning Survey, a detailed reconciliation of the township's mileage is necessary prior to making final payment of 1972 license revenues.

Trustees or their representatives may meet with McCrady and the survey representative between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Tuesday in the engineer's office at the Pickaway County Court-house.

Bondsman Arrested For Money Theft

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A bondsman needed a bondsman himself Wednesday after he was charged with "fishing" envelopes containing $981 for other bonds from a safe in the Hamilton County Clerk's office.

James Brooksbank, 32, of Cincinnati, was held to the Hamilton County grand jury under $100 bond. The money was taken during the night of Jan. 21, police said.

last year was $1.33 a bushel, in 1971 only $1.06 a bushel.

Corn crop value was $371 million last year compared to $342 million in banner 1971.

The corn cash figure is more than somewhat artificial, however, since about 45 per cent of the corn grown on Ohio farms is not sold, but fed back to Ohio animals.

At this fairly stable rate, farmers actually sold only about $152.9 million of their corn crop, feeding the rest. Livestock produces about 54 per cent of Ohio's total farm income with crops accounting for 46 per cent.

High Court To Review Death Case

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's Supreme Court has agreed to look into a question of whether a Franklin County youth should go on trial as an adult on a murder charge.

It accepted for review Wednesday the case of Charles E. Carmichael, charged with first-degree murder in the shooting June 25, 1971, of Donald Reed of Columbus.

The defendant was ordered by the Franklin County Juvenile Court to stand trial as an adult over defense objections claiming the order resulted from hearsay evidence.

In other cases, the court let stand the conviction of Robert Ware on four counts of first-degree manslaughter stemming from an interstate highway crash which killed four persons, and left undisturbed second-degree murder and shooting with intent to kill convictions of William Brady Kearns of Ironton.

Records showed Ware's car was going the wrong way on Interstate 75 in Warren County when it crashed into another vehicle driven by Frances A. Rudokas, who was killed, along with Alice Rowe, Carol Ann Pfau, and Elizabeth Spillmore.

The conviction of Kearns in Lawrence County Common Pleas Court followed the May 17, 1970, fatal shooting of Joseph Campbell and the wounding of Raymond Campbell in the same incident.

Drawbridge Snags Auto; Elderly Ladies Get Ride

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — When Clayton Gignac opened his drawbridge, he couldn't figure out why the sailboat captain below him was frantically pointing to the sky — until he looked up and saw a car carrying four elderly women caught on an open edge of the span.

Madeleine Dow, 74, Norah Bennett, 75, Margaret Strype, 77, and Olive M. Bomb, 78, four vacationing Canadians, were perched 35 feet above Boca Ciega Bay in an 11-year-old borrowed car.

The undercarriage of their car was snagged on the edge of the open, tilted bridge section. The front part of the car pointed downhill, the rear section projected over the open water.

For more than an hour, the women passed the time by looking at the view.

The episode began Tuesday when Mrs. Dow drove her son's 1962 auto onto the Treasure Island Bridge. She said later she didn't hear the warning bells or see the gates come down behind the car as she headed across the drawspan.

Witnesses said she backed up but was only about half way across the dividing line when the bridge's two sections parted.

While the ladies prayed and looked around, the seawalls collected an audience of hundreds, the bay below became clogged with boats, 15 emergency vehicles sped to the scene, 25 police and firemen converged on the bridge, and rush hour traffic backed up for 10 miles.

FBI Questions Man With Gun

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP)—A man was held for questioning by the FBI today after a pistol was found on his person as he passed through a metal detector device at the Greater Cincinnati Airport near here, an airport spokesman said.

Ted Bushelman, airport public relations spokesman, said the identity of the man was not immediately known.

He said the man was detained by an airport security guard, who was working near the metal detector at the entrance to one of the airport's three concourses.

Effort Made To End Slumping Voter Turnouts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Against a backdrop of slumping voter turnouts, a new effort is under way in Congress to increase the number of Americans registered to vote in future elections. It is certain to revive an old argument: Is it apathy or a cumbersome registration process that is to blame for the low level of participation in American elections?

Experts differ on that, but Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., insists that "registration is the villain, and 1972 is no exception." He is sponsoring a bill to have the federal government subsidize the registration of voters.

There is, in addition, legislation to set up a system of registration by post card for federal elections.

In the Nov. 7 presidential election, 77.7 million Americans, or about 56 per cent of the estimated potential voters, actually went to the polls.

More voting-age people stayed at home than cast ballots for either President Nixon, the landslide winner, or Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic nominee.

Both parties staged drives to get newly enfranchised young people to the polls for their candidates; both flopped. Fewer than half of the 11 million prospective new voters cast ballots.

But Kennedy also cited preliminary Census Bureau figures indicating that about 87 per cent of the people actually registered to vote did so in 1972. He said that points squarely to simplified and intensified registration efforts as the key to broadened participation.

Nearly a year ago, a national voter-registration plan was blocked in the Senate by a coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats, who contended it would lead to election frauds and reward the apathetic.

It would have permitted postcard registration in federal elections.

The new proposal is likely to encounter similar resistance; whether the experience of 1972 will help overcome it remains to be seen.

Kennedy, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and other advocates of a simplified system agree that the current process is a particular problem in enrolling the poor, the black, and other minorities.

That has been one of the unspoken issues in past controversies on the subject, for Democrats, particularly liberal Democrats, traditionally have found support among such potential voters.

The Kennedy bill, co-sponsored by 10 other Democrats and one Republican, would authorize $135 million in federal aid to the states over the next three years to help increase voter registration.

Slaying Draws Term Of Life, 20 Years

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Raymond Sams, 19, today began a life term plus 20 years for the fatal shooting of a Cincinnati police detective during an aborted holdup in December, 1971.

Sams was convicted Wednesday of first-degree murder and unlawful entry of a bank, by a Hamilton County Common Pleas Court jury.

Detective Howard Smith was shot trying to stop a holdup of a Fifth-Third bank branch. Two others were arrested.

Dock Union, Teamsters Part Ways

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Harry Bridges' months-long effort to merge his West Coast longshore union with the giant Teamsters union has collapsed over the dockworkers' demands for autonomy.

The trucking union rejected autonomy for the 60,000 International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union members within the 2.5-million member Teamsters.

Acting on recommendations by Bridges and three other top officers, the ILWU executive board ordered on Wednesday "that all talks between our two unions concerning merger be terminated."

The board said the proposed merger should be "considered completely and finally disposed of."

The 71-year-old Bridges, ILWU president since its creation 35 years ago, had been the chief advocate of a merger.

With container shipping mechanization steadily wiping out ILWU jobs, Bridges argued that the ILWU needed consolidation with a larger union to increase bargaining muscle and to cope with increased operating expenses borne by a shrinking membership.

Change Sought In Dead Listing For Ohio Sailor

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A suit has been filed in U.S. District Court here seeking to have the status of Navy hospital corpsman Mark V. Dennis changed from killed in action to missing in action.

The suit, filed by Jerry Dennis, a brother, asks for an immediate, temporary restraining order, arguing that to continue listing Dennis as killed may jeopardize his life if he is now in a prisoner of war camp in Southeast Asia.

The Navy says Dennis was killed in July, 1966, in the crash of a helicopter in Quang Tri Province in South Vietnam. But on the basis of medical tests on the exhumed remains, and contradictory records, his family has been trying for more than two years to get his status changed.

The suit argues that to list Dennis as dead deprives him of his constitutional rights of due process of law, equal protection under the law and the privileges and immunities of a U.S. citizen.

Sneek-A-Peek

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

The constant demands of our active lives require that we all have a career. Whether it be a formal career, such as medicine or law, or an informal (but no less important) career, such as that of a housewife, each of us is expected to find his place and his job in this world. If we don't, then we may be considered a failure. One of the obvious signs of our career-conscious society is the question with which every child is confronted from the time he is first able to respond, "What are you going to be when you grow up, Johnny?" Poor Johnny couldn't care less; he may not even know what "growing up" means, but the question is asked. Combined with this is the speculation done by parents as they watch their child develop. When Johnny hits his sister over the head with her baton, for example, his father may begin to wonder if he may become a drum major—or, maybe, a butcher! As the result of all this, careers have

The two-hour sessions will start at 7:30 p.m.

The clinic will aid an individual in preparing the personal income tax return for the 1972 tax year. Income, expenses, business deductions, donations, and other items to be included in the Long Form 1040 will be given consideration. Recent changes in the Federal Tax Law will be discussed.

John Lester, Certified Public Accountant, Lancaster, will be the instructor for the course.

Registration in the class can be completed at the campus during regular office hours, 8 a.m.-3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Additional information can be obtained by calling 654-6711, extension 27.

become a popular subject for children's books.

Two books by Dr. Alvin Silverstein and his wife Virginia deal with the career of medicine. "Cancer" tells exactly what this disease is, why cancer cells are dangerous, how scientists are working to determine methods to stop cancer, and how to prevent and detect it. It is illustrated by Andrew Antal. "The Skin" is a thorough study of the coverings and linings of living things. It tells about the uses and advantages of having skin, and about the coverings of other animals; fur, feathers, and scales. This book is very clearly illustrated by Lee Ames.

"Robert H. Goddard: Space Pioneer" by Milton Lomask is an easy-to-read biography for the third or fourth-grade level reader. Robert Goddard's ideas and experiments in flying and rockets were the basis for our present-day space flights. This book may inspire your future scientist to build a model rocket in the basement!

Most dramatic of the new books concerning careers is a six-book series entitled, "Come To Work With Us". This group of books takes children on a picture-tour of different occupations within the telephone company, the hotel, the newspaper office, the airport, the aerospace center, and the dairy. They were written by Jean and Ned Wilkinson, and include a forward by Sam Levenson. The excellent photographs show children assuming the different roles necessary to operate each business. This may help the child realize the many different opportunities open to him in every field. In this forward, Sam Levenson says, "Work is one of the best books in the world, therefore . . . Every boy or girl wants to work some day." We hope so, Sam, we really hope so!

Next meeting will be a Stanley Party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rhymen on Saturday evening, March 3.

In a recent card, Jack Jenkins told of enjoying a ski tour in the Alps. He said his skiing skill was not too good, but he had a good time anyway.

A devotional reading, "God's Creation," was used by Mrs. Louise Mathews to open the January meeting on the St. Jacob's Lutheran Friendship Circle.

During the business meeting which was conducted by the vice president, Carl Strous, the election of officers was held, with these results: President, Ned Reichelderfer; Vice President, Carl Strous; Secretary, Anne Jones; Treasurer, Wilma Strous.

In further business, the calendar for 1973 was discussed and accepted by the members. Following consideration of several locations, the class decided to make dinner reservations at Green Meadows Country Inn in February. Dr. and Mrs. Harold Zietlow will be the invited guests for the evening.

After adjournment, Mrs. Louise Mathews served luncheon to the following members and their families: Mr. and Mrs. Carl Strous, Mrs. Ned Reichelderfer, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Strous, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Swain, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph VanFossen, and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Jones.

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

The constant demands of our active lives require that we all have a career. Whether it be a formal career, such as medicine or law, or an informal (but no less important) career, such as that of a housewife, each of us is expected to find his place and his job in this world. If we don't, then we may be considered a failure. One of the obvious signs of our career-conscious society is the question with which every child is confronted from the time he is first able to respond, "What are you going to be when you grow up, Johnny?" Poor Johnny couldn't care less; he may not even know what "growing up" means, but the question is asked. Combined with this is the speculation done by parents as they watch their child develop. When Johnny hits his sister over the head with her baton, for example, his father may begin to wonder if he may become a drum major—or, maybe, a butcher! As the result of all this, careers have

Hornet Hatchback: $2449*

Between the price and the hatch, it's easy to get into.

There's something really new at your AMC dealer — the Hornet Hatchback. This is the car that Car & Driver magazine calls "the styling coup of the year." One look will tell you why. The Hornet Hatchback's got the sporty lines of a European GT car, but underneath it's a great economy car with extra cargo capacity.

We call it a Hatchback because trunk lid and rear window are combined in a hatch. This hatch lifts up and the rear seat folds down to give you 23 cubic feet of cargo space.

And the price makes the Hornet Hatchback doubly easy to get into: just $2449*. What's more, it's backed by American Motors exclusive Buyer Protection Plan. And now the Hornet Hatchback is available with an optional Levi's® interior. Check it out at your AMC dealer today.

Professional Football Draft Over With 442 Selected

NEW YORK (AP) — "Who's Mr. Lucky?" one weary spectator sighed. "Miami selects Charlie Wade, wide receiver, Tennessee State," the National Football League official replied—and, amid cheers of relief, the annual flesh-peddling of collegiate talent finally ground to an end.

It had taken 20 hours and 12 minutes—and 441 other players—to get to that point Wednesday. By that time, whatever suspense and excitement had once been generated in the cavernous ballroom of the Americana

Hotel had long evaporated.

Virtually all the stars had been gobbled up by the 26 clubs in Tuesday's portion of the NFL draft. A few—like quarterbacks John Huftnagel of Penn State and Eddie McAshen of Georgia Tech, running backs Rufus Ferguson of Wisconsin and Howard Stevens of Louisville and Olympic gold medal-winning hurdler Rod Milburn of Southern University—were still unclaimed.

For one reason or another, there was no rush to grab them—although they weren't left out in the cold.

The John Matuszaks, the Bert Joneses and the other names which had attracted nearly 200 spectators to the first round of the draft were long gone. And so were the spectators. There were just 15 of them left in the gallery when the 17th and final round began—and three of them were snoozing.

Matuszak was there. The mammoth muscleman from Tampa, who'd once punched a guy at a party because he'd "put his hands on my girlfriend," and is still serving two years' probation because of it, was the first pick by the Houston Oilers.

"Only in America," he grinned "can a guy who's half Irish, one-fourth Polish and a bit Italian play football in Oak Creek, Wis., Fort Dodge, Iowa, Columbia, Mo., and Tampa, Fla., before being drafted No. 1 by a team in Texas.

The 6-foot-7½, 275-pounder with the big mop of curly hair "will become the highest salaried lineman in pro football history," said Boston attorney Bob Wolff, who'll do Matuszak's negotiating with Houston. It could mean a windfall of perhaps $250,000 for a three-year contract.

Such dreams of greenbacks are beyond reality for the likes of, say Jeff Davis—but he can dream anyway—and with some justification.

Davis, a running back from what the NFL listed as "Mars Hill, N.C.," was drafted just ahead of Wade, in other words, next-to-last, by the Washington Redskins.

But he probably knows full well that just two years ago the Baltimore Colts' last-round pick, the NFL's 441st, was a guy named Don Nottingham. And if Davis is worried about making a team with runners like Larry Brown and Charley Harraway, he can also remind himself that a man who never even played college football and just showed up one day at the Redskins' open tryout, got a Super Bowl check with the name "Herb Mul-Key" written on it.

Tigers, Trace Face Big One At Mill St.

Something will have to give Friday night at the Mill St. gym when the league's stingiest defense takes on the top offensive machine in a clash between the Circleville Tigers and Miami Trace's Panthers.

Circleville is doling out points at a 56.0 average per game and leads all South Central Ohio League teams in this category. Miami Trace has been ripping the nets at a 73.3 clip per game and is leading all league teams in the scoring parade.

However, Circleville is riding the tail of the Panthers with a 71.1 per game average and holds second spot in league scoring. Miami Trace is fourth in defensive play, yielding 64.2 points per contest to the opposition.

It has to be classed as a big one for the Tigers who are currently sporting a 10-3 mark on the season and are sharing the league lead with Washington C. H., both with 5-2 marks. Trace, 8-6 overall, and Wilmington are both hot on the trail of the leaders with records of 4-3 in title action. Washington C. H. will also have its hands full Friday night when Hillsboro, the league spoiler, comes to the Blue Lions' gym. Greenfield will be at Wilmington Friday night in the remaining SCOL tilt.

The Tigers nipped Miami Trace, 67-65, in their first meeting of the season and will be out to make it two straight before what will certainly be a full house at the Mill St. gym.

But it will have to be bounce-back night for the Red and Black who suffered a disastrous cage weekend, losing at Hillsboro, 63-59, Friday and dropping a 65-60 decision to Teays Valley on Saturday.

However, the Tigers are a team with poise, desire and pride. They know what has to be done and have the ability to do it.

Wins by Circleville and Washington C. H. Friday night will set the stage for the league lead battle Feb. 9 when the Blue Lions come to town to take on the Tigers at Mill St. gym.

"We are not panicking despite the two setbacks but feel some changes must be made to get some additional scoring punch into our offense," Circleville Coach John Lawhorn stated. "We will make some moves to attempt to get some better matchups against Trace which we feel are necessary. Its another big one for us as the loss to Hillsboro put our backs against the wall," Lawhorn continued.

Miami Trace will go with Jeff Spears, 5-foot-9, and Pete Jones, 6-foot-1, at the guards, Dave Persinger, 6-foot-4, at center with Muff Jones, 6-foot-3, and Randy Reiber, 6-foot-2, working at the forward posts. The Panthers suffered a setback last week when their stellar playmaker, Glen Gifford, broke his wrist. Pete Jones and Muff Jones are leading the scoring with an average of 15.6 each and Persinger is putting 10.9 points on the board per contest.

Circleville will start Robin Martin, 5-foot-10, Dave Truex, 6-foot, Dan Graham, 6-foot-2, Greg Hoskins, 6-foot-1, and John Ankrom, 6-foot, against the Panthers. Truex leads the Tiger scoring with 18.6 per game, Graham has a 15.5 game average and Hoskins is putting 14.5 points per contest in the record book.

Saturday night the Tigers will be at Hamilton Twp. in a non league tilt. The Ranger starters will be: Rod Tufts, 5-foot-10, and Al Thornton, 5-foot-11, at the guards, Edwin Tope, 6-foot-2, at center, and Jim Moore, 5-foot-10, and Eric Murphy, 6-foot, at the forwards.

North Carolina State Rips Maryland In 89-78 Clash

By GORDON D.S. PETERSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

The North Carolina State fans borrowed a song from the Maryland fans Wednesday night and added a little something. They cut down the nets.

The Maryland fans chant the song "Amen, Amen" when the Terrapins win at home but they don't usually cut down the nets.

The Wolfpack, rated No.2 in the country, beat Maryland for the second time this season Wednesday night 89-78 behind David Thompson and Tommy Burleson.

Burleson's performance prompted N.C.State Coach Norm Sloan to say, "Tommy played the best game of his career, in the second half he was simply awesome."

Thompson, who scored 37 points in the first meeting of these two Atlantic Coast Conference powerhouses, scored "only" 24 points and grabbed 11 rebounds.

Tom McMillen of Maryland led all scorers with 25 points, while Burleson and Maryland's Jim O'Brien each scored 18.

Eighth-ranked North Carolina used strong outside shooting from George Karl and Darrell Elston to break up Wake Forest's zone defense and defeat the Deacons 69-51 in another ACC battle Wednesday night.

Coach Dean Smith of North Carolina thought his team played very well, but added, "It's very difficult to chase a team playing a deliberate fourcorner offense throughout the game."

Wake Forest used a four-corner offense which kept them within striking distance until there were nine minutes left in the game when the Tar Heels scored eight straight points to put the game out of reach.

In other games, 12th-ranked Providence defeated Boston College 73-64, South Carolina stopped Marshall 88-71, Austin Peay beat Samford 98-75, LaSalle ripped Western Kentucky 108-80, Virginia beat West Virginia 89-75 and Georgia Tech was bested by Georgia 86-78.

Ernie DiGregorio pumped in 25 points to lead the Providence Friars over Boston College.

The Friars led 30-26 at the half and then pulled away behind DiGregorio and Fran Costello to hike their record to 13-2.

Virginia, sparked by a Barry Parkhill, used a second half rally to defeat West Virginia.

Austin Peay, led by James "The Fly" Williams, the nation's leading scorer, swamped Samford University of Birmingham. Williams pumped in 29 points and picked off 11 rebounds.

Miami, Bowling Green, OU Grab MAC Basketball Wins

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—"I'm glad we had the cushion," sighed Miami basketball Coach Darrel Hedric after his Redskins salvaged a 68-64 triumph over Western Michigan Wednesday night.

The victory enabled Miami to maintain its one-game hold on first place in the Mid-American Conference standings, although Bowling Green took over the second slot by virtue of a 51-48 win over Toledo, which dropped into third.

Pre-season favorite Ohio University, co-champions last season with Toledo, kept a flicker of a hope for the league title by defeating Kent State 74-64.

Miami appeared to be on the verge of trouncing Western Michigan. The Redskins scored nine in a row early in the game and had built up a 42-24 lead by halftime.

But the Broncos surged back after intermission, outscoring Miami 21-8 in the first 10 minutes of the second period, and had closed the gap 56-53 with seven minutes to play.

Miami, however, held on for the victory to improve its conference record to 5-1. The Broncos fell further into the league cellar with a 1-5 mark.

Ohio had little trouble in rolling over Kent State to improve its MAC mark to 3-3. The Bobcats took a 10-point advantage in the first half and built it up to as much as 18 points in the second period, although the Golden Flashes closed to within six points at one stage. Kent now is 2-4.

"Let's face it, we have to win the rest," Ohio Coach Jim Snyder said of his team's chances in the conference

"I try to get involved in the game," says Julius Erving, the Virginia Squires' Dr. J. And when he does—look out.

Erving, playing 36 minutes, hit on 18 of 29 field goal attempts and 11 of 12 foul shots for 47 points, grabbed 11 rebounds, made five steals and blocked a shot as the Squires scored a 100-94 American Basketball Association victory over the New York Nets Wednesday night.

Elsewhere in the ABA, Kentucky topped Dallas 109-99; Utah whipped Indiana 122-107 and Dallas ripped Memphis 134-106.

race. "Bowling Green beating Toledo helped us."

"Our defense played well. Now we have to generate the offense," Snyder commented.

In other basketball action, Capital and Wittenberg remained in contention in the Ohio Conference race with victories Wednesday night.

Capital smothered Marietta 99-72 behind the 23-point performance of Mike Stumph to boost its league mark to 5-2. Wittenberg, now 6-2, withstood a late Ohio Wesleyan rally to beat the Bishops 64-58.

Cincinnati defeated southwestern Ohio rival Dayton 84-71 despite 30 points by the Flyers' Mike Sylvester. Lloyd Batts paced the Bearcats with 25 points.

In Hoosier-Buckeye Conference play, league-leading Hanover, Ind., downed Bluffton 79-72. Defiance stayed in contention by edging Earlham 73-72 and Taylor, Ind. defeated Wilmington 94-75.

Elsewhere, it was Hiram 80, John Carroll 79; Philadelphia Textile 61, Youngstown State 50; Ohio Northern 55, Findlay 51; Walsh 78, Ohio Dominican 62; Lincoln, Mo. 77, Central State 66, and Edinboro State 85, Mount Union 58.

just a little skeptical of him."

Another such case was Notre Dame's offensive captain, John Dampier, a guard, selected ninth by Cincinnati.

"He's like so many Notre Dame guys," said Brown.

"They seem to lose some enthusiasm when they get to be seniors."

"Dampier was there five years. Two years ago everyone seemed to be saying 'he'll go in the first round,' and he really did play very well his first two years, but he didn't have a good year last year."

"He was hurt, though, and that might have something to do with it. We'll get him up here and learn a lot more."

Brown plans a rookie camp prior to the regular practice camp.

"We'll thin this out ... we'll have this a workable group before we go," he said.

Tuesday's selections, in addition to Curtis were: Albert Chandler, tight end, Oklahoma; Tim George, wide receiver, Carson Newman; Bob McCall, running back, Arizona; Bob Jones, defensive back, Virginia Union; and Robert Maddox, defensive tackle, Frostburg State.

Cincinnati did not draft in the fourth round.

McNulty Sleeper For Bengals?

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals believe they may have come up with a sleeper in an otherwise so-so National Football League draft.

Cincinnati selected Indiana quarterback Ted McNulty in the 15th of 17 rounds.

"A year ago a lot of people were very high on him," said Coach and General Manager Paul Brown of the six-foot, 190-pound passer.

"He's the Sonny Jurgensen type in build, and has a real quick release. Our scouts think well of him."

McNulty was a portage of former Hoosier Coach Johnny Pont. McNulty's prime receiver, Dave Scholnik, was leading the nation in receptions in 1972 until McNulty was injured in mid-season, Brown said.

"He's just a shade taller than Virg Carter," said Brown.

Brown, who said he went for the best players available, said he was "generally pleased" with the Bengals draft.

The Bengals chose mainly running and defensive backs in the second day of the draft.

Wednesday's selections included: —Joe Wilson, running back, 5-10, 210, Holy Cross.

—John Dampier guard, 6-4, 240,

Notre Dame.

—Lenvil Elliott, running back, 5-11, 210, Northeast Missouri.

—William Montgomery, cornerback, 6-2, 210, Morehouse.

—Charley Clark, running back, 6-2, 245, Bethune-Cookman.

—Brooks West, defensive tackle, 6,5, 245, Texas-El Paso.

—Hurles Scales, defensive back, 6-1, 205, North Texas State.

—Ted McNulty, quarterback, six-foot, 190, Indiana.

—Harry Unger, running back, 6-2, 215, Auburn.

—Wayne Estabrook, quarterback, six-foot, 195, Whittier College.

Brown said he passed up Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers, Nebraska's All-America wide receiver, in the first round to pick Isaac Curtis of San Diego State.

Curtis caught 44 passes for 832 yards and seven touchdowns his senior year.

Rodgers was picked 25th by the San Diego Chargers.

"After some games this fall he didn't even weigh 170 pounds," said Brown of Rodgers, noting that 24 other teams also passed him by.

"And he wasn't much more than 5-foot-9, and most pro football teams want to get some blocking from a guy who plays flanker. I suppose we were

Tuesday's selections, in addition to Curtis were: Albert Chandler, tight end, Oklahoma; Tim George, wide receiver, Carson Newman; Bob McCall, running back, Arizona; Bob Jones, defensive back, Virginia Union; and Robert Maddox, defensive tackle, Frostburg State.

Logan Elm Wrestlers Beat Bloom-Carroll

Logan Elm defeated Bloom-Carroll wrestlers, 34-27, Wednesday in the first-ever home meet held by the Braves.

It was the second time this season the Braves have defeated the Bulldogs. Earlier they turned the trick, 39-30.

Logan Elm took the first four matches. Tim Kellstadt, LE's 98-pound wrestler, upped his record for the season to four wins and one loss by defeating Jon Metzger, 5-0.

Gary Hall, the Braves' 105-pounder, improved his record to 4-1 also by defeating Randy Champlin, 10-0 in the second match. In the 112-pound Class, Mark Fouch won by default, giving him a 4-0-1 record for the season. Jim Osbourne pinned Ron Champlin in 1:11 of the third period for the Braves' fourth victory and his fourth in six matches this year in 119-pound competition.

The next two matches went to Bloom-Carroll. John Solomn defeated David Hulse 12-9 in the 126-pound class and Steve Jackson edged Don Maxson 6-5 in the 132-pound class.

Wes King pinned Mark Boso of Bloom Carroll in 1:31 of the third period of the 138-pound class for Logan Elm's fifth win. It was Kings third win in five starts.

Celtics Edge Cleveland

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
"We were so cold I was waiting for the Eskimos to show up," said Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn. Then along came the rescue team of Don Chaney and Jo Jo White to thaw out the Celtics and give them some breathing room in their tight race with the New York Knicks.

"We played as bad as you could play," said Heinsohn after the Celtics played well enough to beat Cleveland 94-89 and take a one-game lead in the National Basketball Association's Atlantic Division over the Knicks, who were upset 94-91 in Detroit.

In other NBA action, Golden State whipped Philadelphia 131-115 and Seattle topped Houston 118-109.

Chaney scored 14 points, nine of them on three-point plays, and White scored seven and turned in a top defensive effort in the final period to pull the Celtics past Cleveland.

McNulty Sleeper For Bengals?

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals believe they may have come up with a sleeper in an otherwise so-so National Football League draft.

Cincinnati selected Indiana quarterback Ted McNulty in the 15th of 17 rounds.

"A year ago a lot of people were very high on him," said Coach and General Manager Paul Brown of the six-foot, 190-pound passer.

"He's the Sonny Jurgensen type in build, and has a real quick release. Our scouts think well of him."

McNulty was a portage of former Hoosier Coach Johnny Pont. McNulty's prime receiver, Dave Scholnik, was leading the nation in receptions in 1972 until McNulty was injured in mid-season, Brown said.

"He's just a shade taller than Virg Carter," said Brown.

Brown, who said he went for the best players available, said he was "generally pleased" with the Bengals draft.

The Bengals chose mainly running and defensive backs in the second day of the draft.

Wednesday's selections included: —Joe Wilson, running back, 5-10, 210, Holy Cross.

—John Dampeer guard, 6-4, 240,

Notre Dame.

—Lenvil Elliott, running back, 5-11, 210, Northeast Missouri.

—William Montgomery, cornerback, 6-2, 210, Morehouse.

—Charley Clark, running back, 6-2, 245, Bethune-Cookman.

—Brooks West, defensive tackle, 6,5, 246, Texas-El Paso.

—Hurles Scales, defensive back, 6-1, 205, North Texas State.

—Ted McNulty, quarterback, six-foot, 190, Indiana.

—Harry Unger, running back, 6-2, 215, Auburn.

—Wayne Estabrook, quarterback, six-foot, 195, Whittier College.

Brown said he passed up Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers, Nebraska's All-America wide receiver, in the first round to pick Isaac Curtis of San Diego State.

Curtis caught 44 passes for 832 yards and seven touchdowns his senior year.

Rodgers was picked 25th by the San Diego Chargers.

"After some games this fall he didn't even weigh 170 pounds," said Brown of Rodgers, noting that 24 other teams also passed him by.

"And he wasn't much more than 5-foot-9, and most pro football teams want to get some blocking from a guy who plays flanker. I suppose we were his right mind would like it. We had no fundamentals at all," said Stan Kirby, whose regulars all played on the Marion Pleasant state football titlists.

The Spartans' first seven basketball players were playing football the day before they beat Marion Catholic 45-29 in the opener.

Since then, Ohio's second-ranked Class A squad has won 13 more games for a 22-game regular season basketball victory streak. The Marion County school has won 38 in a row in football.

Have the all-winning football ways rubbed off in basketball?

"Don't forget these kids played in the state basketball tournament two years ago," answered Kirby. "Maybe we've helped football. Don't get the cart before the horse."

Kirby adds, "These kids are just such good competitors. I thought we would have a slow start this year and have to catch up. Instead, I've given them more time off than ever before."

Three of Pleasant's all-state football players, end Terry King, defensive back Max Midlam and quarterback Scott Ballinger, start in basketball.

The other regulars are Dave Mauk, the team's top scorer with 17 points per game and a defensive football half-back, and Larry Fink, a 6-4 erstwhile tackle.

Around Ohio: Two Upper Arlington players ran into each other while stalling for a last shot against fourth-ranked Newark. The Wildcats picked up the ball and Randy Foster's basket with two seconds left gave Newark a 60-58 victory.

Berne Union in Fairfield County had 110 of its 215 pupils sick last week and the school still played a game against Lancaster Fisher, taking an 84-44 loss.

Dan Zarlingo tied a Lowellville school record with 39 points against Lordstown.

Willard, second-ranked in Class AA, hit 60 per cent of its shots (51-86) in whipping Bellevue and Norwalk last week. Mansfield Senior, No. 6 in Class AAA, sank 49 of 74 free throws for a pair of victories over Elyria and Marion Harding.

Youngstown East trailed Youngstown North 22-2 in the second quarter last week, yet won 63-46. East outscored North 61-24 the rest of the game after the slow start.

Boardman meets its tournament nemesis, Akron Central-Hower, Friday. The Youngstown area team has lost in regional play the last two years to Central-Hower.

Flu decked Hamilton Garfield's players and games with Middletown and Cincinnati Aiken last week. Now Garfield mentor Don Gillespie has the illness.

Another turnaround: Springfield Shawnee trailed Covington 16-2 after the first quarter and still won 65-61. If Toledo St. Francis whips St.

John's Friday, the Blue Division title of the Toledo City League will go to St. Francis. Macomber, Central and DeVilbiss are tied for the Red Division lead.

Ted Hipsher tied Ken Brooks' Findlay regular season scoring record of 43 points against Fremont Ross Saturday with Brooks viewing the outburst. Brooks, now an Ohio State freshman, was the first to congratulate Hipsher afterward.

Demand for tickets has forced Adena Buckeye West, 13-0, and Tiltonsville Buckeye South, 9-3, to move their game tonight to the 6,000 seat Steubenville Arena. Class A West won the first meeting of the season 69-56 over Class AA South.

Phil Saunders, a 6-foot Cuyahoga Heights senior leading Greater Cleveland in scoring, roomed with University of Maryland star Tom McMillen this summer at a basketball camp. "It was a very valuable summer," admitted Saunders, averaging 30 points a game.

A playoff game looms between defending state champion East Tech and Kennedy for the Cleveland East Senate crown after East Tech avenged an earlier loss to Kennedy. Both are 10-1 in the league. St. Ignatius has clinched the West Senate title.

Filipinos Want Agnew

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government of the Philippines is understood to have asked U.S. officials why that nation was omitted from the itinerary of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew on his current mission to Southeast Asia.

There were reports of Philippine resentment at the fact Manila is not among the stops listed for Agnew's trip.

Philippine Ambassador Eduardo Romualdez delivered a message from his foreign office to the U.S. government Tuesday but did not disclose its contents. He said, however, "We have noted the omission of the Philippines from the itinerary of the vice president. We have no explanation for this omission."

Agnew's itinerary includes stops in South Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia, Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore and Indonesia.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the Agnew mission was aimed at discussing postwar relations, explaining the continuing American role in Asia, and stressing the U.S. interest in self-determination for Southeast Asia.

State Pay Boost Faces Deadline

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Time is running out for state employees who are still waiting for $8 million in raises the General Assembly said they could have more than a year ago.

The money was part of a pay package the legislature passed in December, 1971. The package was cleared by the federal Pay Board last March, but the board refused to make the raises retroactive to December.

The state Personnel Department and various public employes unions have been fighting since then to reverse the board's ruling. If they don't succeed before June 30, it appears the $8 million which would have been paid between December and March will revert to the general fund.

"Under our accounting rules, if there hasn't been a judicial determination by then, the money would lapse," said acting Finance Director Robert Baker.

With the controversy standing about where it was last March, the outlook appeared uncertain at best that the fate of the money could be resolved before the June 30 deadline.

It appeared earlier this month that President Nixon's order dissolving the Pay Board would put the matter back in the hands of the Personnel Department, which wants to pay the money out in a lump sum.

But Personnel Director Paul Corey said Tuesday that the board retains its authority over pending cases, like Ohio's, for another three months.

And he said the federal government is considering policies which could extend its jurisdiction even longer through a series of smaller, specialized pay boards.

Irish Assassins Are Unleashed

BELFAST (AP) — Northern Ireland's largest private Protestant army gave the green light early today to Protestant assassins, and during the night gunmen killed two more young Roman Catholics.

The death toll for the week rose to five. Four of the victims were Catholics.

Tom Herron, vice-chairman of the 50,000 Protestant vigilantes of the Ulster Defense Association, said the UDA command could no longer control the extremists and would no longer try to.

"Recent bombing outrages" by the Catholics of the Irish Republican Army had provoked the Protestants, Herron asserted, and "Protestant extremists cannot keep turning the other cheek."

The hooded body of a 14-year-old Catholic boy was found during the night in a car at a prehistoric stone circle south of Belfast known as the Giant's Ring. The boy had been shot through the head.

A few hours later police found the body of a 17-year-old Catholic near a highway on the west side of Belfast. The police said the boy was apparently shot from a car as he waited for a taxi after visiting a girl friend.

The night's assassinations raised the confirmed body count in Northern Ireland's religious warfare to 696 since the fall of 1969.

NEW YORK (AP) — The CBS Television network plans to broadcast two journalistic coups tonight—separate interviews with President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam and presidential advisor Henry A. Kissinger. The Kissinger interview, which CBS says is being taped today at the White House, will be shown from 9 to 10 p.m. EST and the Thieu interview from 11:30 p.m. to midnight EST.

CBS says the Kissinger interview is expected to cover both U.S. foreign policy and all aspects of the recent Vietnam peace agreement. It will be exclusive unless other news organizations are allowed to join the proceedings.

CBS diplomatic correspondent Marvin Kalb will be the interviewer. His brother, Bernard, conducted the Thieu interview Tuesday at the presidential palace in Saigon.

The network says that dialogue covers events in South Vietnam since Saturday's cease-fire and Thieu's thoughts on political prospects in his country in the months ahead.

Both programs come on the same night of yet another CBS news exclusive — the final talk any reporter had with former President Lyndon B. Johnson prior to Johnson's death last month.

That special, which already was scheduled, is being broadcast after the Kissinger interview. It covers what Johnson considered his greatest accomplishment — progress in equal rights for all Americans.

Entitled "LBJ: The Last Interview," the program was filmed at the LBJ ranch in Texas 10 days before the former president died of a heart attack.

His interview with Walter Cronkite was conducted in guest quarters called the Cedar House. The whole thing took less than two hours, interrupted only when Johnson suffered an attack of angina pectoris.

He stepped outside briefly to take a nitroglycerine tablet that eased the pain, then returned and insisted on continuing the interview, according to the show's producer, Burton Benjamin.

The completed program contains film clips of Johnson's major civil rights addresses, among them his famous 1965 speech to Congress that included the black rallying cry: "We shall overcome!"

Cronkite noted that many say Johnson, in his zeal to do something for the blacks and underprivileged of this country, "promised so much and the delivery was difficult."

"Do you think that you overpromised?" he asked. Johnson's stubborn pride showed in his first answer: "No, I don't know what we promised. We had certain goals and we made certain recommendations... but I'm unaware of a lot of promises we had made that weren't fulfilled."

Cronkite rephrased the question, putting it in the context of "the promise of a better life."

Johnson backed into the answer. He first credited his administration's accomplishments in civil rights, medical care and education to the groundwork laid 20 years earlier by President Harry S. Truman.

Some Sailors Grumbling Over Cut In Choice Foods

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Navy cooks in this area say their chow hasn't suffered from an order that cheaper meats be used in Navy mess halls.

But there is some grumbling in the ranks about the directive from Adm. Elmo Zumwalt Jr., chief of naval operations.

Today's lunch for 6,000 men at the Naval Training Center includes baked meat loaf and fried filet of perch, plus seconds.

The galley chief, Barkie Mcherron, claims "most of the kids prefer hamburgers, even over steaks." Standing lines to the more expensive selections are always smaller than the speed line to hamburgers, Mcherron said.

But the first two sailors questioned at the 32nd Street Naval Station voiced complaints.

"It seems to me like I'm eating stew all the time, or macaroni and cheese," said Seaman Appren. 2.C. William Hoblitt, 19, of San Luis Obispo, Calif. "I haven't seen too much meat."

Seaman Jerry Murrell, 20, of Indianapolis said he doesn't object to more hamburger — "I don't like steak anyhow, but they've cut back to two sausages instead of three for breakfast."

CWO G. V. Greeson, food service officer for the naval station, said Zumwalt's order means "we're going to cut out the frills." But there will be no cutback in nutrition.

"These guys are still eating better than at home," he said. "I can't afford to feed my own family this way." His galley dinner costs 70 cents.

"I've heard quite a few complaints at each and every meal," said Commissaryman 2.C. Robert Barnes at Miramar Naval Air Station.

"But, then, guys always complain," the 39-year-old cook and apprentice butcher from Los Angeles adds. "You know, they say, 'This isn't like what Mom puts out.'"

Bloodmobile, Volunteer Car Drivers On Red Cross Agenda

Bloodmobile visits, drivers, water safety, Chillicothe Veterans Hospital, first aid and the membership drive were among topics discussed during the Wednesday evening meeting of the board of directors of Pickaway County Chapter, American Red Cross, at headquarters.

It was suggested that regular blood donors be encouraged to bring another person with them when they next visit the Bloodmobile.

Someone is needed to coordinate drivers for the station wagons which are used in supplying transportation to doctors and hospitals in Columbus for persons referred to the Red Cross for this service by other agencies.

Also on the wanted list are instructors for first aid. Instruction is needed for teachers and others working where there are many people. Refresher courses are also needed for many. Some plans have been made for classes in multi-media and advanced first aid but more are needed.

The membership drive will be conducted in March, Red Cross month.

Members of the Senior Center answered the need in making calls for the project FIND. They assisted in locating people who were eligible for support Wednesday afternoon at the second annual YMCA recognition luncheon at the Pickaway Arms.

Michael F. Bruno welcomed the 38 people present and following the luncheon, Harold F. Hewitt Jr., executive director of the YMCA, told of the past year's activities. Richard W. Penn, new president of the Board of Directors, spoke of plans for 1973.

Founders honored were Mrs. Miriam Adkins, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Eshelman, Mr. and Mrs. Collis A. Young, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Noecker, Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Grigg, Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Johnson, George W. Van Camp, Co., and South Central Power Co.

Charter members are Dr. and Mrs. Robert N. Phillips and the First National Bank of Circleville.

Last year's Century Club members are Mrs. Miriam Adkins, Michael F. Bruno, The Circleville Herald, Circleville Oil Co., Contractors and Industrial Supply, Harold Defenbaugh, E. I. duPont de Nemours and Co., Emmetts Chapel Church, Edward G. Grigg, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Hartman, Paul Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, Kiwanis Club, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Noecker, food stamps and were unaware of it. They also found others who needed different assistance.

A picture of the Christmas gift shop at Chillicothe Veterans Hospital was shown and it was reported that over 300 gifts were sent from Pickaway County donated by merchants, organizations and individuals.

Volunteers who serve at the hospital are now assisting families of men entering as patients. The men are given friendship bags which contain a variety of personal articles, similar to those given as birthday gifts to patients. The parents while waiting for processing of admission are given coffee and the children candy to break the monotony and ease the tension.

A first aid and water safety workshop will be conducted from 1 to 8 p.m. March 17 at Anchor Inn on Morse Road in Columbus. Bill Miller will direct the workshop for instructors, board members and executives.

A seminar on emergency care for heart patients is planned for Feb. 17 in Columbus. Other future events include a Youth Meeting in Columbus on March 9 and awards to chapters and area individuals.

U.S. Airlines End Plans For SST In Near Future

NEW YORK (AP) — Decisions of the nation's two largest international airlines not to exercise options to buy the controversial Concorde has probably ended the possibility of American carriers using supersonic planes in the next few years.

Pan American World Airways announced Wednesday it would not exercise its options to buy seven of the British-French planes because studies showed the aircraft "has significantly less range, less payload and higher operating costs" than present wide-bodied jets. Besides, the carrier added, the Concorde would require "substantially higher fares."

Trans World Airlines said it would recommend that its board of directors not exercise its options on six Concorde because "first priority must be given to the improvement and expansion of our present subsonic fleet." The airline also said it had "some serious question as to the economic viability of the Concorde on TWA's system."

Pan Am and TWA are regarded as industry leaders, particularly in overseas routes where the Concorde would be useful, and their decision to scrap the options is expected to affect the thinking of other airlines.

Four other U.S. carriers hold options on the $50-60 million plane, which is scheduled for delivery sometime in 1974. American and Eastern have options to buy six planes each; Braniff and Continental have options on three planes each.

Braniff is the only one of the four that has displayed much enthusiasm for the Concorde. It says the plane would be ideal for its Latin American flights, but Braniff doesn't want to be the first carrier to try out the new aircraft.

The major attraction of the plane is its speed — more than twice the speed of sound. It can whisk a maximum of 128 passengers from New York to Paris in about three hours.

Its major drawbacks are its price, four times higher than originally quoted; its passenger capacity, less than half that of many planes now in use; and the noise it generates.

The Harrison Twp. fire department, aided by Lockbourne Air Force Base units, couldn't control the blaze, which also destroyed contents of the trailer. There is no estimate of damage.

'73 IMPALA. OUR MOST POPULAR CAR...

NOW AT THE YEAR'S MOST POPULAR PRICES.

There are good reasons why year after year Impala is America's most popular car. Impala traditionally comes through with more value per dollar when it's new (and the highest resale value in its field).

This year is no exception. Impala features a new hydraulic bumper system. Plus variable-ratio power steering, power disc/drum brakes and Turbo Hydra-matic, all standard.

There are also good reasons for you to come in and check our deal on a new Impala. After all, selling Impalas at popular prices does wonders for our popularity too.

Monday he removed part of the alarm on his store so he could install it in a client's store.

Some Sailors Grumbling Over Cut In Choice Foods

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Navy cooks in this area say their chow hasn't suffered from an order that cheaper meats be used in Navy mess halls.

But there is some grumbling in the ranks about the directive from Adm. Elmo Zumwalt Jr., chief of naval operations.

Today's lunch for 6,000 men at the Naval Training Center includes baked meat loaf and fried filet of perch, plus seconds.

The galley chief, Barkie McHerron, claims "most of the kids prefer hamburgers, even over steaks." Standing lines to the more expensive selections are always smaller than the speed line to hamburgers, McHerron said.

But the first two sailors questioned at the 32nd Street Naval Station voiced

Nixon Choices Win Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has confirmed five of President Nixon's six new Cabinet choices and the sixth, Caspar W. Weinberger, is likely to get the nod next week.

Peter J. Brennan, New York labor leader, was approved by a 81-3 vote Wednesday to be Secretary of Labor. James T. Lynn, Cleveland, Ohio, attorney, was confirmed by voice vote to head the Housing and Urban Development Department.

Lynn also has been designated by the President as one of three super-cabinet officials to coordinate policy in the field of community development.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he expected the Senate could vote on Weinberger as head of the Health, Education and Welfare Department before it begins the traditional Lincoln Day recess next Thursday.

Weinberger has agreed to testify Friday before the Labor and Public Welfare Committee regarding budget cuts in HEW programs.

His appearance apparently will satisfy members of that committee who have been asking that the nomination be held up.

Weinberger worked on the cuts as Nixon's budget director in the last administration.

Brennan is the first labor leader to run the Labor Department in 20 years.

Some civil rights groups opposed his nomination on the grounds that New York construction unions discriminate against blacks and Puerto Ricans.

But his Senate supporters said Brennan, who was head of the New York Building and Construction Trades Council, had no power to force hiring of minorities by individual unions.

Thug Makes Big Mistake; Tangles With Lady Wrestler

TITUSVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Ann Marie Lynch quit professional wrestling seven years ago, but she came out of retirement to hand a burly burglar "a beating he'll never forget."

Mrs. Lynch, 36, and her husband, Patrick, surprised the thief in their living room after returning home late. "The first time I can't beat a woman, I'll quit," Mrs. Lynch quoted the 6-foot-2 intruder as shouting when she grabbed for him after he knocked her husband to the floor.

"Boy, was he surprised!" recalled the 5-foot-6 Mrs. Lynch. "Patrick was hit in the stomach. He has a Pacemaker and that guy could have killed him. It made me good and mad. 'I pinned the guy and knocked him good. His head hit the coffee table when I pinned him and there was blood all over my white living room carpet. He finally got away, but the police ought to be able to spot him. His face was tore up real good."

Mrs. Lynch, who weighs about 155 pounds, said her confrontation with the burglar Tuesday night wasn't the first time she foiled a would-be criminal.

"I was in a bank in Chicago one time when some guy tried to hold it up," she said. "He had this gun but I saw it was only a water pistol and I jumped him and held him until the guards came."

"I ain't afraid of no man."

A certified public accountant like her husband, Mrs. Lynch said it has been a busy week.

On Monday night she pulled a man from a burning car.

"It's kind of funny," she said. "But, then, I like to be active."

Mrs. Lynch, who wrestled as Ann Marie Antonelli, said she doesn't remember the record she compiled in her 10 years as a wrestler in Chicago and New York, but "I won more than I lost."

"I wasn't ever famous or anything, but I was pretty tough. I still am."
